RE-ALIGNMENTS IN EUROPE

Miss Jean Batten, the New Zealand aviator, who is making good progress on her third attempt to make a solo flight from England to Australia.

BEHIND THE SCENES AT GENEVA

BALKANS AND THE LITTLE ENTENTE

FIVE FOREIGN MINISTERS

Geneva, May 10. Anticipations of the collapse of the disarmament conference is giving rise to talk of political re-alignments in Europe.

Indications that important developments, tending towards closer union in the Balkans, may occur behind the scenes of the forthcoming meeting of the Council of the League of Nations are provided by the news of the promised attendance of five foreign ministers from Eastern Europe.

They are:

Tewfik Rustu Bey (Turkey)

M. Titulescu (Rumania)

M. Yevichitch (Yugo-Slavia)

Dr. Benes (Czechoslovakia)

Colonel Beck (Poland)

NOTABLE FACTS.

It is a notable fact that most of these Ministers are from countries who are not members of the League Council and for whom there, therefore, exists no special reason for attendance at Geneva at the time of the Council meeting.

It is significant, too, that Tewfik Rustu and Colonel Beck have just paid official visits to Bucharest, the Rumanian capital.

This remarkable diplomatic activity seems to suggest that some closer ties between the Little Entente and the Balkan States are being elaborated.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S ECONOMIC POLICY

PREMIER STUMPED FOR AN ANSWER

ELLIOT SCHEME REACTIONS

London, May 10. Mr. Walter Elliot's efforts to restore prosperity to the British farmer by quotas, marketing schemes, etc., is being subjected to considerable criticism in some quarters at Home.

There have been complaints, for instance, from New Zealand, which recently made an offer for the complete removal of all duties against British goods. In return for a free market in Britain.

New Zealand complains that the imposition of a quota on Dominion produce tends to restrict the development of the Dominions.

A question was raised in the House of Commons to-day as to what were the articles of agricultural and horticultural produce in regard to which it was proposed to make this country self-supporting and what articles it was intended should be imported in part from the Dominions and foreign countries.

The Prime Minister said it was impracticable within the limitation of question and answer to deal with these wide issues, but he assured the House that in the commercial negotiations with Holland and other countries, the continuation of the general development of Home agriculture would not be jeopardised.—British Wireless.

CENTENARY OF TORONTO

BRITAIN SENDING AIRCRAFT

London, May 10. Sir Philip Sassoon stated in the Commons that the British Minister, on the invitation of His Majesty's Government in Canada, had arranged that a flight of four Hawker Fury aircraft would take part in the centenary celebration at Toronto in July.—British Wireless.

COMMONS' RECESS

London, May 10. The House of Commons will adjourn for the Whitsuntide recess on the 18th inst., reassembling on the 29th.—British Wireless.

Mr. C. H. Reid, of the Canton Municipal Electricity Works, is leaving on a well-earned holiday by the Hakozaki Mart to-morrow for England, where his daughter, Mrs. Skuse, is also spending a holiday.

It is the intention of the British Government to erect an official pavilion.

Eighteen countries are taking part in the exhibition, including France, Germany and Italy.—British Wireless.

RACIAL RIOT STORY DENIED

JAPANESE REPORTED KILLED

DISTURBANCES IN BRAZIL

(Special to "Telegraph")

By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1931. Received May 11, 11 a.m.

San Paulo, May 10. Grave racial disturbances between Japanese and Brazilians in which several lives have been lost are reported to have occurred at the Japanese colony in the town of Tiete.

The Central Police Department in the São Paulo District emphatically denies the report of the incident and says that reports appear to refer to minor disturbances that occurred in April when some persons were injured.

The original report of the affair stated that five Japanese had been killed and sixteen Japanese injured, in addition to casualties on the other side, as the result of an attack by a large mob of Brazilian workers.

HONGKONG RECOLLECTIONS.

The report alleged that the Brazilians swarmed into the Japanese colony in Tiete and engaged in violent attacks on Japanese, the affair being the outcome of an incident in which, it is alleged, a Brazilian seduced a Japanese child, whose parents killed him in reprisal.—United Press.

MYSTERY FIRE AT SHAMSHUIPO

HOUSES BADLY DAMAGED

A fire which broke out in Fook Wing Street, Shamshui Po district, in the early hours of this morning involved houses No. 98 and 100, the first floors of both of which were severely damaged by the conflagration.

The ground floor of No. 100 was used as a knitting factory, while the first floor of both houses are tenement dwellings.

A police report states that as everybody had disappeared from the place, suspicions have been aroused.

Shortly after 3 o'clock a call was sent through to the Mongkok Fire Station, and three appliances under Mr. A. I. Cash attended, as well as two fire engines, under Mr. G. C. Moss, from the Kowloon Station.

In another outbreak in Shun Wan village, Tai Po district, a storehouse was destroyed, damage being to the extent of over $500. A woman, Wong Tai-yuen, suspected of arson, has since been sent to the Government Mental Hospital, as she is believed to be insane.

The British Municipal Police in Shun Wan have handed over to the City authorities a young Serb, who was arrested by a plainclothes constable after being found in the bedroom of a residence on the Bund with alleged stolen goods in his possession.

MAN WITH STRANGE CLIMAX TO CAREER

LEAGUE AGAINST IMPERIALISM

HOME SECRETARY ON WATCH

(Special to "Telegraph")

By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1931. Received May 11, 11 a.m.

London, May 10. Mr. Reginald Francis Orlando Bridgeman, C.M.G., M.V.O., a cousin of Lord Bradford, and at one time a highly regarded member of British diplomatic service, has again come before the public eye in dramatic fashion.

He is now Secretary of the British Section of the Communist League Against Imperialism and has opened offices in London for the purpose of directing the activities of the group.

In the House of Commons to-day, the Home Secretary, Sir John Gilmour, replying to various questions relating to the strange climax to Mr. Bridgeman's quite honourable career, said he was keeping an eye on the organisation of which Mr. Bridgeman had publicly acknowledged himself to be Secretary.

Sir John Gilmour added that Mr. Bridgeman and his wife had previously operated from Germany. They were expelled by the Nazi Government owing to their subversive activities and had established themselves in London.

HONGKONG RECOLLECTIONS.

Mr. Bridgeman will be remembered in Hongkong by reason of his connection round about 1928 with Mr. Eugene Chen and the mysterious so-called Chinese Information Bureau, at 65, Belgrave Road, Minister, S.W., whose methods bore a striking resemblance to those of the former Russian Information Bureau, which was the chief instrument for Bolshevik propaganda in Britain.

Soon after, Mr. Bridgeman was revealed also as the Secretary of the League of Anti-Imperialism, when he, together with Mr. James Maxton and Mr. S. Sadiqvala, the Communist M.P., were detained at Ostend and ordered to return to England, when on their way to attend meeting of the League of Anti-Imperialism at Cologne.

EDUCATED AT HARROW.

Mr. Bridgeman was educated at Harrow, and at the age of 19 was appointed honorary Attaché to the British Embassy at Madrid. Shortly after he began his service at the Paris Embassy, he attended the coronation of the King as a Cold Staff Officer, and between 1912 and 1919 he was twice private secretary to Ambassadors in France—the late Lord Bertie and Lord Derby.

Until 1921 he was successively Charge d'Affaires at Vienna and Teheran. Mr. Bridgeman, who was for a time described in "Who's Who" as "unemployed since 1922," and in the "Foreign Office List" as having "retired on a pension, July 1, 1929," was appointed a M.V.O. in 1914 and was made a C.M.G. in 1917.

CHINESE BUREAU IN LONDON.

When the Chinese Information Bureau was in being, a Daily Mail representative called and had a brief interview with Mr. Bridgeman.

When Mr. Bridgeman was asked if he was acting as the official agent of Mr. Chen in London, he replied, "I cannot say that. You

HOUSE OF LORDS REFORM

LORD HAILSHAM KILLS BILL

LORD SALISBURY'S GESTURE

London, May 10. The scheme for the reform of the House of Lords, as embodied in the Bill submitted by the Earl of Salisbury, has been abandoned for the present.

The scheme involved a reduction in the number of persons entitled to sit in the House of Lords, by the election of a certain number of hereditary peers, and the nomination of life members of the House.

The House of Lords to-night passed the second reading of Lord Salisbury's Reform Bill, when about two hundred and fifty Peers out of membership of 750 were present.

The second reading was approved by 171 votes to 82. Lord Hailsham indicated that as Lord Hailsham had killed the Bill, he would ask for a second reading as a demonstration of the conviction that reform was needed.

He would not, however, trouble the House with any further stages. The Bill was, therefore, dropped.—Reuter.

London, May 10. H.M.S. Whirlwind, of the Fifth Destroyer Flotilla, was in collision at 10.51 a.m. to-day with the merchant ship, Luineach, 1,074 tons, belonging to the Limerick Steamship Company, about ten miles south-west from Start Point.

SILVER BILL EXPECTED SOON

NEEDED TO CLARIFY SITUATION

PRESIDENT CONFRS WITH MORGENTHAU

NATIONALISATION ISSUE

Washington, May 10.

The confusion at present surrounding the silver market, where the progress made in the drive to secure improved status for the metal is differently interpreted, is expected to be removed shortly.

Legislation to clarify the silver position is expected soon.

President Roosevelt has apparently informed the Secretary of Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, exactly how far he is willing to go in order to meet the views of the silver bloc in Congress, and it is anticipated that there will be agreed legislation on the lines laid down.

Mr. Morgenthau has already reported to the President the results of his conference with Congress leaders who are concerned with silver, and he has now notified the Senators who are interested that the Treasury is ready for further discussions at any time.

Some sentiment has developed here for the abandonment of the proposal to nationalise silver, although in some interested circles this is regarded as unimportant.—Reuter.

He was sixty years of age. Menzhinsky became an active revolutionary at an early age, when he entered upon the legal profession in Tsarist Russia.

COUNCIL MEETING

DELAYED WORKS
QUESTIONED

His Excellency, the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., presided at a meeting of the Legislative Council yesterday and others present were:

Officer Commanding the Troops (Brigadier G. B. Rowan Hamilton, B.S.A., M.C.).

The Colonial Secretary, (Hon. Sir Thomas Southern, K.B.E., C.M.G.).

The Secretary for Chinese Affairs (Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith).

The Colonial Treasurer (Hon. Mr. E. Taylor).

The Inspector General of Police (Hon. Mr. T. H. King).

The Harbour Master (Hon. Commander G. F. Hole, R.N., retired).

The Director of Medical and Sanitary Services (Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington, C.M.G.).

The Director of Public Works (Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson).

Hon. Sir William Shenton, K.T.

Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., I.L.D.

Hon. Mr. J. P. Brazeau.

Hon. Mr. S. W. T'wo, O.M.C., I.M.D.

Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Mackie.

Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau.

Hon. Mr. J. Owen Hughes.

Mr. R. A. C. North (Clerk of Councils).

Brigadier Rowan Hamilton, the Hon. Mr. Lindsell, the Hon. Mr. T. H. King, and the Hon. Mr. Owen Hughes, took the Oath of Allegiance.

FIRST READINGS.

Four New Bills Presented
And Accepted.

The Attorney General moved the first reading of a Bill entitled "An Ordinance to Amend the Law relating to Opium." He said: The main purpose of this Amending Ordinance is to penalise tenants, etc., of houses or flats, who have sub-let or consented to the use of these premises as sub-lets, as opium dens. Such consent being difficult to prove, proof of knowledge of use is now made sufficient to throw on the tenant, etc., the onus of disproof.

The Colonial Secretary seconded, and the Bill was read a first time.

Immigration.

The Attorney General moved the first reading of a Bill entitled "An Ordinance to regulate the entry and departure of Persons into and out of the Colony, to prohibit the entry of undesirable immigrants, and to confer various powers in connection therewith." He said: In connection with this Bill, I can only say that the purpose and form thereof are clearly set out in the Objects and Reasons.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

Definition of Hawker.

The Attorney General moved the first reading of a Bill entitled "An Ordinance to Amend the Miscellaneous Licences Ordinance, 1933." He said: The definition of hawker under Section 2 of the Miscellaneous Licences Ordinance, 1933, Ordinance 26, of 1933, has been found not sufficiently wide, since it does not include a peddler who boards only one particular ship in the harbour to hawk. Although under the same Section, a ship may be a place, a harbour peddler has to move from place to place before he brings himself within the definition.

The Colonial Secretary seconded, and the Bill was read a first time.

China Fleet Club.

The Hon. Sir William Shenton moved the first reading of a Bill entitled "An Ordinance for the Incorporation of the Trustees of the China Fleet Club."

He said: Your Excellency, I rise to move the first reading of a Bill entitled "An Ordinance for the Incorporation of the Trustees of the China Fleet Club." The object of the Ordinance is to incorporate the Trustees of the China Fleet Club and to give them perpetual succession. It gives them power to hold landed property in this Colony to deal with it, to dispose of it and to acquire other property.

The proposed ordinance is in the usual form for incorporating associations such as the China Fleet Club, and has had the approval of the Hon. Attorney General.

The China Fleet Club is the successor of the Naval Canteen, which was formerly carried on at Marine Lot No. 65, now known as Lot 1 and Lot No. 3287, and for that purpose was vested in Trustees and necessitated new appointments from time to time and consequent expense and trouble. This property was disposed by the Trustees to the Government and the present site on which the Club now stands was acquired.

The power of appointing new Trustees is now vested in the Commodore or other officer in charge of His Majesty's Naval establishments in Hongkong, and will in future be exercised in pursuance of the terms of the proposed ordinance.

I have the honour to move the first reading of a Bill for the Incorporation of the Trustees of the China Fleet Club.

Hon. Mr. Mackie seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

H.E. the Governor: Council stands adjourned until Thursday next.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Delay on Public Works
Questioned.

Following the Council, a meeting of the Finance Committee was held, the Colonial Secretary presiding.

Votes totalling $183,509 being as to $55,856 under estimates 1933, and $127,653 under estimates 1934, were considered.

In respect of an item (165) for $2,375 in connection with work on the Junior Technical School; an item (21) of $27,000 in connection with the new road from Island Road to Stanley; an item (27) of $5,000 in connection with the Sexton's quarters at Chai Wan Cemetery; and an item (28) of $7,000 in connection with a 10-foot path from Shek O Gap to Gap D'Aguilar Wireless Station; the Hon. Sir William Shenton put questions.

He said: I would like to ask for information in respect of items 165, 21, 27, and 28, in which it states that progress has been slower than expected and only a certain amount of work has been possible to be done. I do not know whether you can give us any information why progress has been so slow in regard to these items. We all know that the Public Works Department have a lot of work on hand and a number of big schemes. Would it not be possible to hand out some of these smaller matters to outside firms in this Colony as has been done in the past years, for instance, in the case of the Post Office? Has slow progress been due to the fact that the Public Works Department are so much over-worked?

Slow Progress:

Hon. Director of Public Works: The slow progress in most cases is due to the contractor being slow, and not through the delay of plans or that kind of thing. We know that contractors have from time to time struck more rock than was anticipated. In the case of 165, I think this is one in which the contractor "went bust." We had to get a new tender and that takes up a new time.

With regard to 21 the contractor's progress was so slow that we had to get another contractor and it took considerable amount of time changing over.

With regard to 27, that, I think, was owing to a change in the site. We had everything ready and the site was changed and we

CREAM SOUP

An Ideal Dish For All Children

"Soup of the evening, beautiful soup!"

The Mock Turtle, stout fellow, was doubtless advertising his own particular brand on the occasion of uttering this paean of praise, but such is the virtue of soup in general on the family menu, that almost any housewife might echo him. Especially if it were a cream vegetable soup he had in mind. For there is no better way of getting an adequate supply of milk and vegetables into the stomachs of little children than by a soup combination.

Calories, vitamins, nourishment, all are there. The only element milk lacks to make it a perfect food is iron and the vegetables will supply that.

Bear in mind, too, that skimmed milk can be used to advantage with butter added to make up the fat content.

Preserving Vitamins

Laboratory tests have shown that from 15 to 60 per cent of the food value of most vegetables dissolves into the water in which the vegetables are cooked. An even larger percentage of minerals and some vitamins are lost in the water. When the water is used in soup, all these are preserved.

Cream soups are easy to make but seasoning is of great importtance. A suspicion of onion, a bit of celery and a mincing of parsley bring out more delicately flavoured vegetables. The seasoning must be used to accentuate the natural flavour of the vegetable, not to hide it.

The texture should be smooth and of cream-like consistency. A lumpy, too-thick soup is far from appetizing.

Tonst steks, croutons, tiny marble-like dumplings, crisp crackers, thin "Melba" chips and any crisp bit of breadstuff add interest as well as food value to the plate of soup.

Garnishings

Garnishings also must not be overlooked because they add much to the allure of soups. "Coin spots" of paprika, a sprinkling of minced parsley, a bit of grated cheese or a few whole pieces of vegetable dropped in just before serving are simple, easily prepared garnishes. Salted whipped cream may be used for a rather formal cream soup.

To make the simplest cream soup, merely add one cup of sifted vegetable to one cup of well-seasoned medium white sauce. The juice which clings to the vegetable thins the sauce to the desired consistency. This is a splendid way to use small amount of left-over vegetables.

CHAPTER XLV

Marcia left Pabilto in a mood that was a mixture of relief and the utmost bitterness. All those years he had been suffering for a crime he had not committed. Suffering loneliness and hopelessness and the loss of the one girl in the world he loved. All these years—

Lottie came into the room. "What's the matter, honey boy?" she demanded carressingly.

"Nothing."

"You look it! Beau's gone—" Pabilto looked up quickly at that.

"Decided he needed a change of air," Lottie added lightly.

"Did you listen to what we were saying?" he demanded. She answered with a nonchalant, easy, "Sure."

"I wasn't going to give Beau away," Pabilto said, frowning.

"Oh, he knew that," she answered, "but that woman who was here might any time. See?"

"Yes I see—"

He pulled himself up wearily and moved toward the doorway opening on the balcony. Everything in his life had come too late. If Marcia Trendway had told the truth a few years earlier nothing in the world could have kept him from marrying Estelle. Now—

"Let's go over and see what they're doin' on the house this afternoon," Lottie suggested.

"If you like," he agreed.

"Say, if you don't wanna go, just say so! Nobody's going to make you do it."

"I want to all right. I'm just a little tired, I guess."

"Do you love me, Pablo? Love me a little bit, uh?"

"I've asked you to marry me, Lottie."

Her face clouded.

"I know I'm not very demonstrative," he admitted. "I'm sorry."

"You ain't much good at pretendin'," she said harshly. But he thought he was a little better at pretending than she knew.

"Be a little patient with me, will you, Lottie?" he asked, not quite steadily.

But even her love for him could not teach her patience. Soon Lottie was crying and he was obliged to comfort her and pretend some more.

"You do love me, don't you?" she said, mopping her eyes and choking back the last of her sobs.

"Of course I do, Lottie," he said dully. "I'm lucky chap and I know it."

"You'll never know how I love you, Pablo. Never!"

"You're awfully good to me, Lottie."

"Good? Kiss me, honey. Oh—not like that!"

What if he should drop his arms and say, "I can't go through with it, Lottie! I can't!" What would happen then? He had not known she would be so demanding for demonstrations of affection. He had not known that pretence could be so hard.

Estelle wrote Pabilto that evening. She had to send the letter by post because there was no chauffeur now to carry messages. She wrote:

"Dear Pabilto: It is good to hear your real name without fear. Marcia has told my father and me what she has told you, too. I am so glad for you. I have not for a long while been so glad about anything."

"I want to see you and wonder whether you will want to come to see me. It has been a long time since we have met but, remembering our hours together as I have so keenly since being here, I feel that—oh, I don't know. I can't express it."

"I hurt you horribly, I know. Perhaps if I had been stronger I would have seen some way to avoid doing that. But I want to tell you now that I love you as much as I can ever love anyone and I will marry you if you still want me—Estelle."

Pabilto reread the note slowly, his eyes blurred by the dizziness that had swept over him as he read it the first time. Then the servant appeared at the top of the stairs and behind her Pabilto saw—Norris Noyes!

For a moment Noyes paused; then he moved forward with a weak, groping "Pabilto!"

Pabilto clung to Noyes' hands.

The two made the small meaningless comments people make when emotions are too great to be expressed by words. At length Pabilto said, "I have never needed you so much as now—"

And even Noyes, in his humbleness, could believe that. Pabilto was thin. His eyes were tired and his lips were set to that grim line which tells of a vast determination and an equally vast hopelessness.

"You do love me, don't you?" she said, mopping her eyes and choking back the last of her sobs.

"What's wrong?" the older man asked.

"It's nothing that can be changed," Pabilto assured him. "I wouldn't even bother you about it but you know I've always told you everything."

For a moment he pressed the letter in his pocket, then abruptly his hand dropped. He had no right to press that letter nor feel a shaken and ecstatic warmth as he touched it. He must write Estelle and tell her he was engaged to be married. To write her that after she had told him she loved him as much as she could love anyone!

A man named Billings sent a note to you," Noyes said, "but I forgot it. I left it on the bureau propped before the glass, but I was so excited—"

"We'll get it when we get your things," Pabilto said. He put an arm around Noyes, stooped shoulders and for a short moment forgot that things had a way of coming to him too late.

Noyes pitted the girl deeply but was distracted at the thought of her becoming Pabilto's wife.

He said one morning after Lottie had lost her temper and thrown a cup of tea at the fast-disappearing servant, "Pabilto, you can't marry that girl!"

"But I'm going to," Pabilto said grimly. "I owe her a lot," he added more gently, "and she cares for me. Besides, I've already asked her. The thing's done."

"Things can be undone."

There was no answer to that.

Presently Noyes went on, "I've heard that you cared for Jim Field's daughter."

"I still do," Pabilto let himself say.

"Then you're not being fair to her—to Lottie."

"I'm sorry," Pabilto shook his head. "I can't talk about it. Besides, it's all settled."

underthings of orchid, peach and when with him. An airy "My sapphire chiffon. Collecting this sash, she came as close to happiness as she had been since Pabilto had asked her to marry him. Sometimes, in the nights Lottie woke with tears on her cheeks. Pabilto was not happy, she knew. Well, she vowed in her bravest mood, she'd make him so. But at other times she realized she did not know how to make him happy.

She went to La Merced a good deal those days. The church appealed to her and warmed her a little as she struggled to be near that embracing, comforting Someone who was spoken of so easily and often as "God."

And here among the women who knelt with devout eyes on the altar Lottie would sometimes pray ardently in her own manner: "God, I haven't gone so very straight but honest, I promise you if you'll just give me this chance—"

She liked Noyes and called him a "good old scout," but his eyes, as they rested on her, were too frankly appraising for her comfort. She affected little mannerisms

A warm sausage and a piece of bread after a hard day's work finds the young Spreewald woman above at the Spring Fair at Kotthus near the Spree coast thoroughly enjoying herself.

An enraged steer recently broke out of a New York slaughter house and went on a general rampage on the pier. Dockers were forced to climb the walls but the steer was finally subdued.

Such an unfortunate episode can happen even during hunting; over the horse's head and into the brook!

Even dogs are being submitted to the caprices of fashion. Our picture shows a poodle with a modernistic haircut.

FRIDAY, MAY 11, 1934.

NEW TERRITORY
DEVELOPMENT

Whilst expressing sympathy with the objects aimed at, the Government's reply to Mr. Braga's questions regarding the development of the agricultural resources of the New Territories is not altogether satisfactory. It is admitted that intensive vegetable and fruit cultivation is steadily spreading, but further extension of the Government experimental garden at Sheungshui is not considered necessary at this stage. Now that it has been definitely established that the New Territories are eminently suitable for the growing of fruit and vegetables, it is surely desirable to expand in this direction, so as to make the Colony far more self-supporting than it is at present. Whilst not in any way under-rating the value of the advice and assistance available at the Sheungshui garden, we suggest that there is call for far greater encouragement than is possible from this source. A broad, comprehensive scheme could be devised and, with the aid of definite financial allocations, put into effect so as to cover large areas of the territories, with depots at various points, at which the services of skilled advisers would be available. It seems essential also that means be found for financially assisting cultivators. Under such conditions, a big, thriving industry could be built up, and in course of time this would help to absorb some of the workless people now striving to eke out an existence in our urban areas. So far as the suggested experimental farm for pig-breeding and poultry-raising is concerned, the Government attitude is somewhat puzzling, for whilst the conclusion has been reached that such a project is not worth while, a willingness to explore the matter further is displayed. The presumption is either that the matter has not yet been analysed in any great detail, or that Government may be disposed to consider a modified scheme. It is something to the good, at any rate, that the Government has not definitely turned the project down. In view of this fact, and of the general sympathy expressed with the ends in view, it is now up to those who are keenly interested in the matter to see that the Government is supplied with relevant facts on the subject. By steadily pegging away, the advocates of progressive and intensive development of the New Territories' resources may eventually convince the authorities that they have a really good case.

NOTES OF THE DAYJAPAN AND CHINA

Japan has not tired of the diplomatic method of letting her foreign policy be made known through channels that may later, if necessary, be repudiated. The challenge to the scheme of financial assistance through the good offices of the League of Nations, in accordance with the recommendations of Geneva's economic and technical experts, is sounded through the semi-official Rengo News Agency. The strangest thing about the whole affair is the suggestion made (fairly near the truth) that China is heading for national bankruptcy within a few years, owing to the severity of her adverse trade balance. For Japan does not employ the argument to make other suggestions for remedying this state of affairs or preventing its development, but merely mentions it, in passing, in denying the right of other Powers to come to China's aid, to make her more self-sufficient and less likely to meet with financial disaster. In short, the Rengo statement is practically an invitation to accept the financial ruin in China as conforming to Japan's ideas of what is most desirable in China if Japan's ambitions are to be achieved. Doubtless, this is very true, but it is unlikely to stand by and watch such a course of events. The Rengo statement will, of course, be ignored. When Japan acts, it will be time enough to dispute with her.

BRITISH SOCIALISM

The executive of the Labour Party at length has repudiated the sensational policy associated with the name of its indiscreet follower, Sir Stafford Cripps. Perhaps it is too late. Sir Stafford has been more often in the public eye during the last 12 months than any other outside the ranks of the Ministry. He was Solicitor-General in the late Labour Government. He is chairman of the Socialist League, a body affiliated with the Labour Party, representing the vigorous, intellectual Left wing. It is he who has brought the question of democracy versus dictatorship to a head in Great Britain by declaring that the Labour Party, if returned to power, would endow itself with emergency powers which would be in effect dictatorial. He has used extravagant language about the House of Lords, about the Palace entourage of the King, and the possible need of resort to force. He has added a spic of excitement to politics by foreshadowing the relentless methods to which the next Labour Government would resort. And now the executive committee of the official party has repudiated his policy.

POWER OF CONTROL

Will that repudiation stand? Have the party's officials any more power to control its decisions than Sir Stafford has? That is the question which is vexing Socialists and being exploited by their opponents. It is urged that the Socialist League is only a small extremist element and has no right to speak for the Labour Party as a whole. But it was significant that at both the last annual delegate meetings of the party this extremist element carried the day in most of the resolutions put to the vote, and its aggressive attitude forced important decisions against the wishes of the leaders. The latter, it is true, generally get their way in the end, for they control parliamentary candidatures. Therefore, it was of great importance that they should, however tardily, issue a declaration reaffirming their belief in democratic government and parliamentary methods, and denouncing "individual or group dictatorships."

SERIOUS THINGS

But the Socialist League led by Sir Stafford Cripps has already done two serious things which cannot quickly be undone. It has led the masses of middle opinion throughout the country, rightly or wrongly, to the view that the Labour Party is a menace to parliamentary government; that it is intent upon seizing arbitrary power and effecting a revolution. Its propaganda has discredited not only the League itself but the whole Labour Party. It has been said, perhaps truly, that every speech made by Sir Stafford Cripps has lost the party 20,000 votes. But more significant than that, he has stirred into activity forces which he had not bargained for—those of the Fascists. Before he began his vigorous campaign the British Fascists were far more negligible than now. Sir Oswald Mosley's Fascist Organisation has grown in strength with every utterance of members of the Socialist League. The aggressive men of the Left have, in fact, damaged the party to which they belong, and greatly reduced its chances of success at the next election.

REBUILDING THE HOUSE OF INDUSTRYBy ISRAEL M. SIEFF

INDUSTRY needs a new spirit, but a new spirit will not get us far unless we can harness it for constructive work. One of the more depressing sides of history is the emergence of ideas which are desperately needed by the community, and the failure of those who hold the ideas to give them practical shape by creating the machinery with which they can be effectively carried out. Suggestions which would have brought success or averted disaster are misunderstood or obstructed, and come to nothing.

Five or ten years ago it looked as if all proposals for British reconstruction would meet with this fate. Now at last we find a different temper in the nation. Do not let us miss the opportunity.

The leaders of industry have more or less solved the problem of guiding large numbers of people to work together, within the framework of a limited company incorporated by law for a definite purpose. But there are many tasks which a limited company cannot undertake, except possibly in those rare cases where it spans an entire industry. The attempt to cover these functions which are beyond the scope of the single company has led to a huge range of experiments—holding companies and amalgamations and cartels, joint selling organisations, trade associations, employers' associations, trade unions, research associations, companies to eliminate redundancy, and many more.

Has not the time come to sum up all this experience and to adopt new mechanisms of organisation which shall bring order into our industrial structure and give it a new pattern?

After a good deal of study I have come to the conclusion that probably three new mechanisms are called for. The first of these mechanisms I will call the Marketing Board. Marketing is far too often regarded as an isolated process in trade, as if it had no connection at all with production. This is an entirely false conception, and has been largely responsible, in a laissez-faire system, for the present breakdown. When we shall have so advanced in the science of industrial organisation as to see in distribution merely an additional process in the long chain of production processes, then we shall be on the way to avoiding a great part of the waste and maladjustments in industry and inadequate selling system.

In order then, to escape uncertainties and irregularities—the results of unplanned marketing—and to secure an even load on all productive plant, so that costs to the consumer can be reduced, it is necessary to have the market looked at as a whole by an organisation which can find out scientifically what the demand really is, and so handle the stream of orders that they are not broken up uneconomically into little quantities, but are bulked and placed where they can be filled at the lowest cost. A series of strong marketing corporations could secure the reconstruction of industry from the inside.

By taking away from manufacturing units the tasks of maintaining old markets, and finding new markets for their products—a very specialised function—produ-ers would be set free to concentrate on the technique of production, for which they are best fitted. The impulse given by the Central Marketing Boards to increase competitive capacity would stimulate factory managers to devise new and more efficient methods ensuring lower costs, without endangering profits or lowering the standard of life of those working in the industry. This competition in costs between the constituent units would, moreover, remove many of the anomalies, which are inefficient and unscientific, undertaken to meet the opportunity.

Marketing Corporations, however, cannot solve the problems of the producer without action on his part. A second and complementary mechanism is therefore needed—the Producers' Association.

Producers' Associations I would regard as giving the necessary common machinery by which all undertakings concerned in production, whether it were the production of tinplate or silk stockings, would settle their common policy as regards the specification of the product, together with other technical questions, checking of costs, and so forth.

These two organisations—the Marketing Board and the Producers' Association—would be the instruments by which the actual processes of production and distribution would be remodelled in accordance with the ascertained needs of the consumer, and with the needs of industry for stability and order. They would not, however, be able to cope with a number of questions too basic to be determined by any body which does not represent industry as a whole. Only when a large part of industry has been effectively organised into Producers' Associations and Marketing Boards will it be possible to establish for each industry a council representative of capital, management, and labour, which would also keep in intimate contact with other industries closely interested in its fate.

Such a council should deal with labour questions, research, publication, and all matters touching the industry as a whole as distinct from matters affecting the various parts of it. Eventually, when industry has built up an organic structure of the type briefly outlined, it should be possible to realise the ideal of a Parliament of Industry or National Industrial Council, representative of British industry as a whole and enjoying full powers of self-government devolved on it by Parliament.

Attempts have been made in many countries to create such a Parliament of Industry on a basis of existing individual firms. They have all failed, as they were bound to fail. As men of vision we must build, but as men of common sense we must build step by step. To rear Utopias in the clouds is an attractive pursuit, but it does not get us much further. Let us keep our eyes for the present on the immediate steps in front of us—the creation of Marketing Boards and of Producers' Associations as a basis on which industry can be put into full working order, and can earn the privilege of self-government.

The Very Idea!PHOTOGRAPHY

WE have had a great deal to do with photographers in our time. Our photograph has appeared in most papers and periodicals from time to time. We dare say that, next to the Prince of Wales, we are the most photographed man in the world. This is on account of us being a martyr to rheumatism.

You may have seen me. It usually goes: "Mr. Kelly, who was once a martyr to rheumatism, now cured thanks to Henderson's Indian Syrup of Hoojah. This is his unsolicited testimonial." Dear Sirs,—For years I suffered from rheumatism. I could not bend my elbow, and my backbone had knots in it. I spent about eight hours out of the twenty-four in bed.

"After one bottle of your Syrup of Hoojah my backbone straightened out, I cut three new teeth, and won third prize in sweepstakes. After the second bottle I represented Hongkong at the Far Eastern Olympic Games and won the egg and spoon race against all comers. I also find your mixture excellent for cleaning straw hats. You may use this testimonial and enclosed photograph as you wish."

We have been cured of rheumatism about three hundred times altogether. Our first introduction to a photographer was a very early age.

We were lenned up against a chair and told to watch the dicky bird while the operator retired from sight beneath a black sheet. We thought this a good opportunity to make our escape, but was headed off just as we reached the door. After about five attempts, they roped us to the chair, and the resultant picture, they tell us, was almost lifelike.

Press photography is quite different from the ordinary stuff. We were Press photographer once, until one day we were listening to the Salvation Army and we came all over very like. We went into the ring, and, hurling ourselves on to the big drum, sobbed our heart out. We were asked to give our testimony.

We said, "Bretheren and Sisteren we have been down in the depths, but now we are saved. We were Press photographer. (Murmurs of horror from the crowd.) Yes! We used to barge into all sorts of shows free on the strength of carrying a camera. We used to dig our elbows into people, and say to the Governor: 'For the love of Mike, come a bit closer to the camera, can't cher! And take that hat off and hold it in your right hand.'

We used to take pictures of race finishes and always made the horse look as if he'd won. (Boo!) But now we are saved."

Then we all sang, "Take Me Back to Ole Virginny," and we were taken into the fold and made an admiral.

About our last photograph we prefer to say nothing. Those sort of pictures seem all right when you first see them, but after a few years you find yourself rummaging about in the attic, and you come across it. You then say "Bah!" or laugh bitterly, as the case may be.

Home photography is different still. There is no chance of escape from the amateur photographer. You are dragged out into the back yard with the sun in your eyes for ten minutes, and if the result is not a complete blank it is a vile libel.

The only good thing about photography is the dark room. The office photographers reckon that it is the only place where they can have a decent, undisturbed sleep during working hours.

EGGS AND ART.

Eggs and art are not strangers. Wasn't it Rossetti who displayed an unmistakable appreciation of eggs? Now a recognized artist has sprung, upon an unsuspecting world a still-life painting of fried eggs. Nor is it ever suggested that it might have been intended for a sunset.

Evidently the artist understands the needs of these times. Artists who seek benefit of the "dole" should paint pictures with some appeal for the common man.

Obviously even a cubist might qualify by adopting the fried-egg medium of expression. Why could he not appeal to the common man and still preserve his precious artistic integrity with, say, a portrait of "Scrambled Eggs?"

LINGNAM GLEE CLUB"THE GYPSY ROVER" PRESENTED

Canton, May 9. The Lingnam "U" Glee Club gave a most delightful entertainment in the Canton Club Theatre last night when they presented "The Gypsy Rover". Although styled in the programme as a musical comedy, it was more in the nature of an operetta. The parts were all taken by Chinese students, girls and boys, who spoke English extremely well; in fact, some with a real Oxford drawl, as the parts required. The costumes were colourful and artistic. It is a great pity that the audience was so small. Nevertheless, all those taking part deserve the highest praise for their clever performance and all who did not go to the Theatre certainly missed a very enjoyable evening's entertainment.

On Friday, 18th instant, members of the Faculty, Lingnam University, under the auspices of the Arts and Science Club, will present in Swaney Hall, Lingnam, at 8.30 p.m., "An Evening of One-Act Plays—Spreading the news" by Lady Gregory; "Suppressed Desires," by Susan Glaspell; "Mankin and Mankin," by Alfred Kreyborg and "Deilah" by Gilbert Emery.—Our Own Correspondent.

SITUATION

Shanghai, May 11. No new developments in Sino-Japanese diplomatic relations have occurred since the return of Mr. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, to Japan.

It is generally accepted that all negotiations concerning Sino-Japanese problems must be dropped as a result of the "hegemony statement."

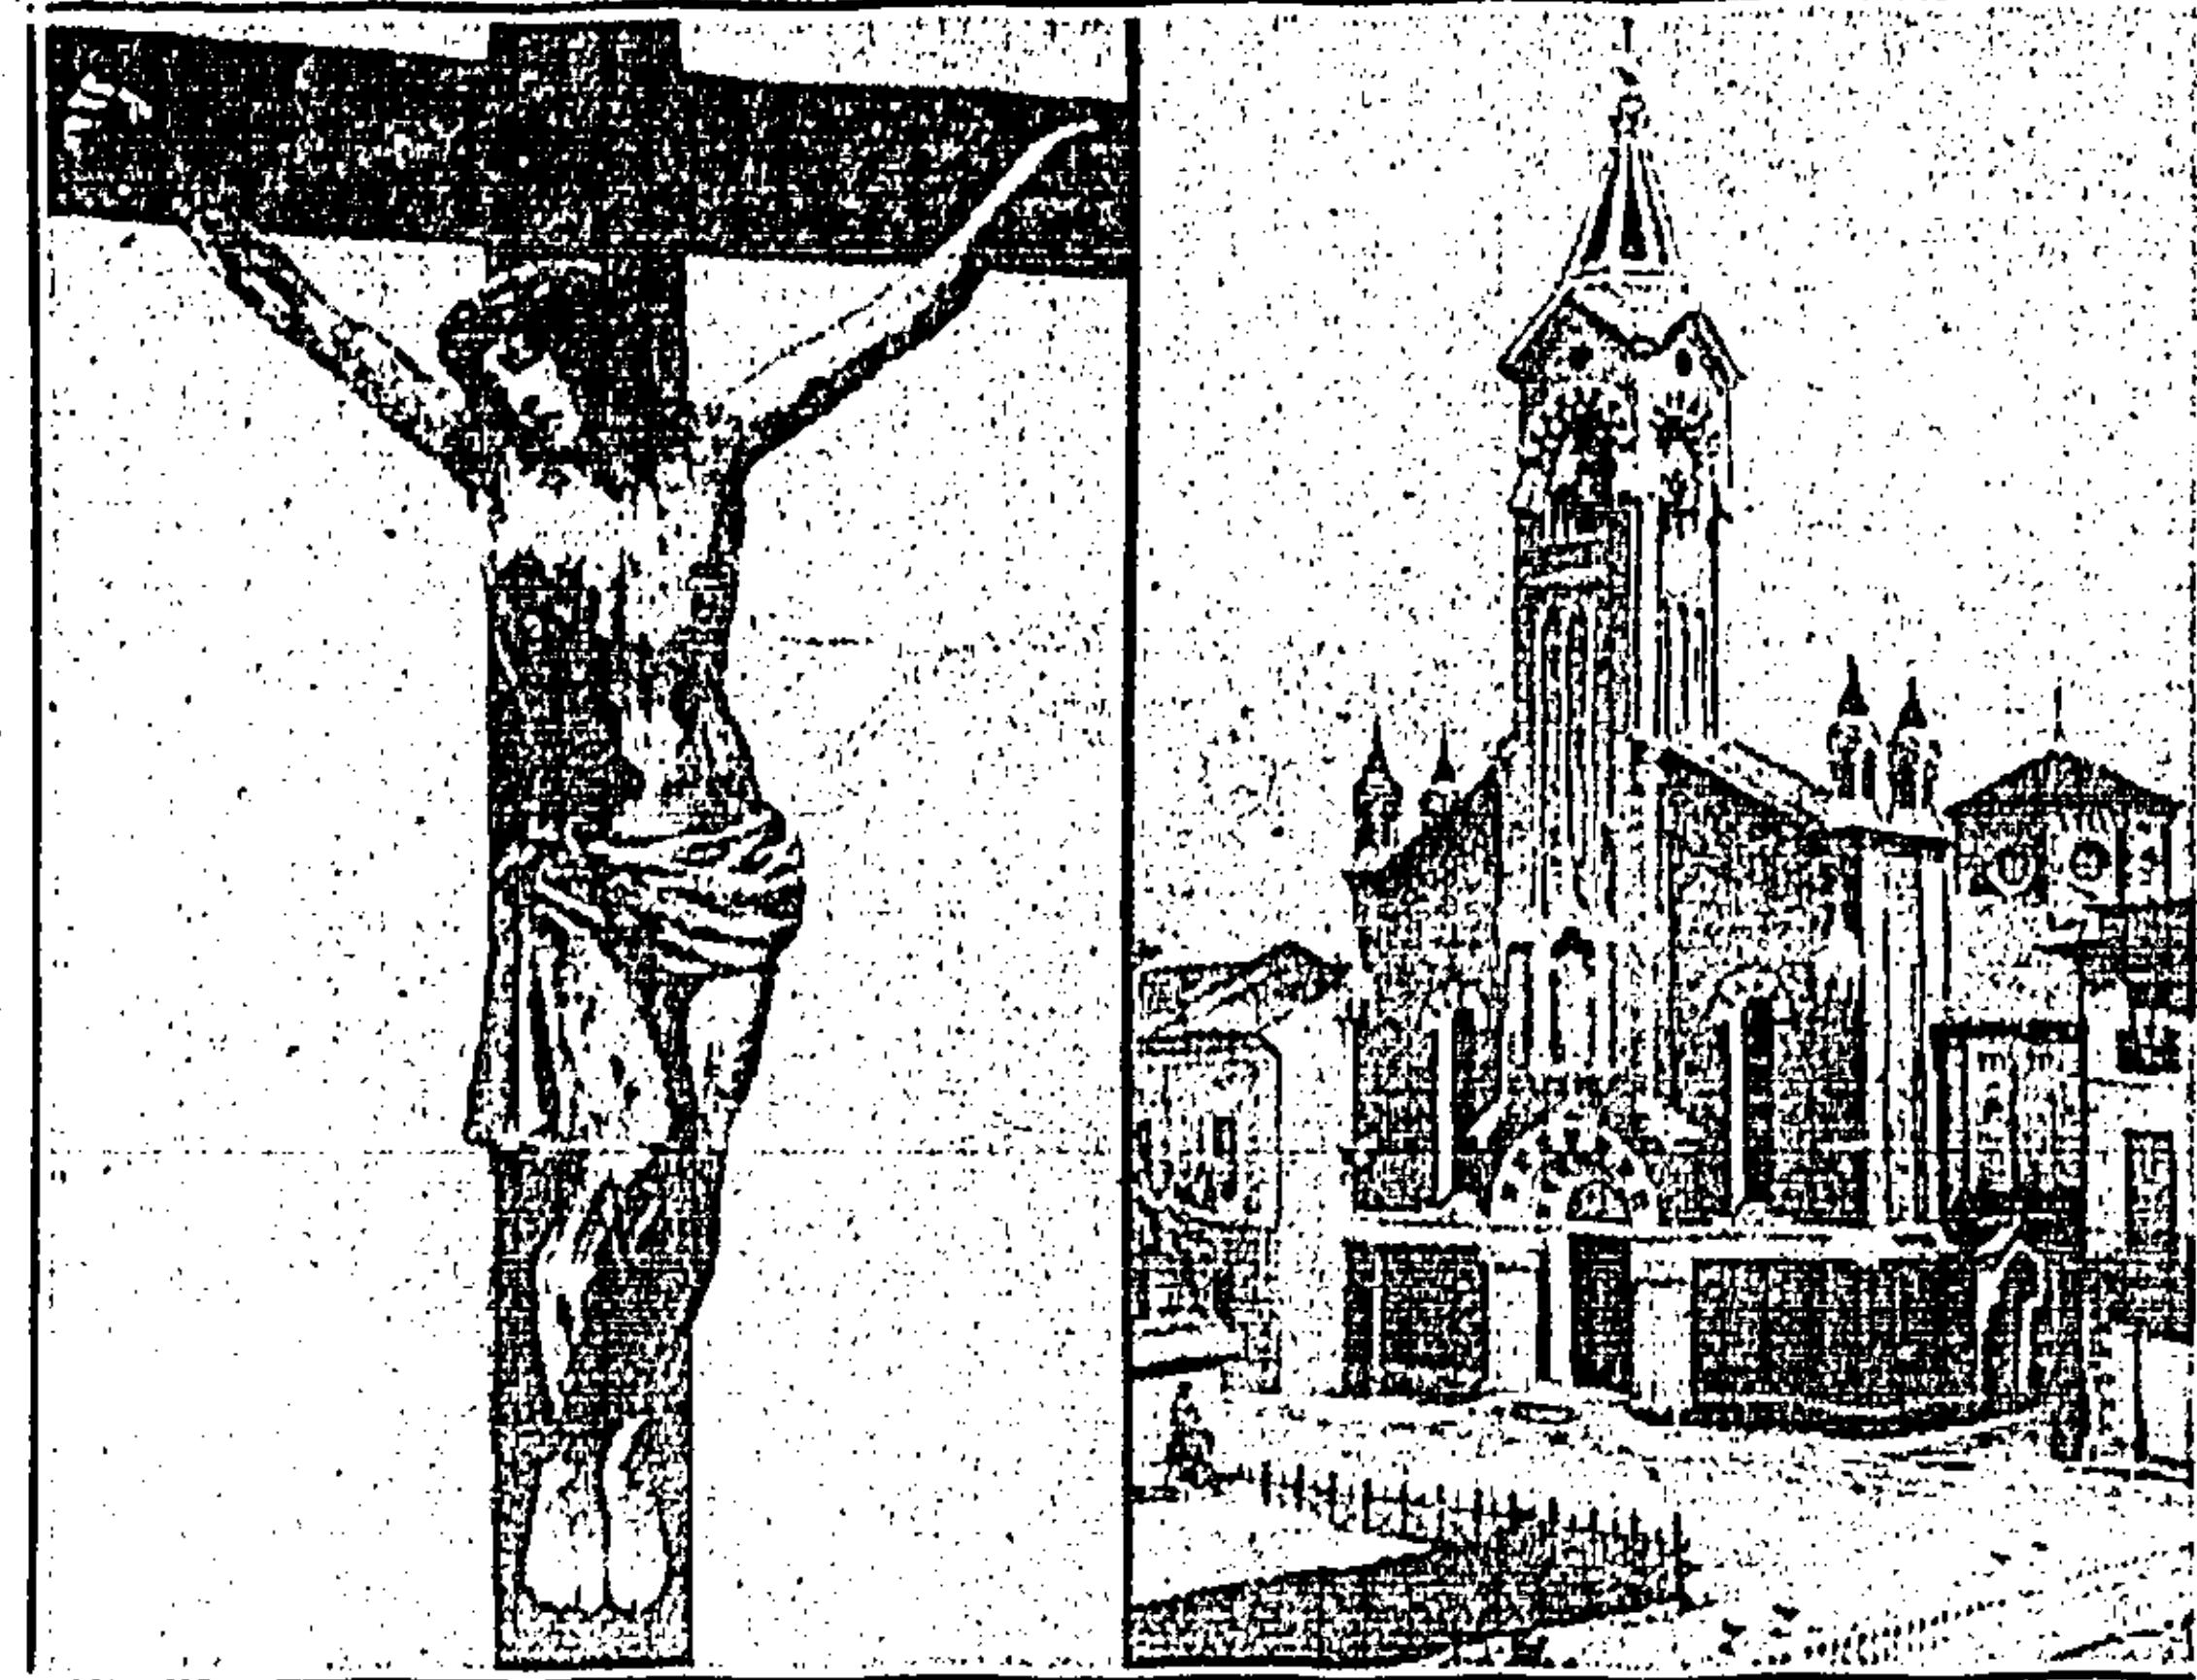

It is believed in certain quarters that Japan is now inclined towards a more moderate policy toward China, at least for the time being with a view to alleviating the strong feeling of the powers, or perhaps while the Japanese Foreign Office is formulating a "Far East policy" on an entirely new basis.—Central News.

field, a woman, Au Min, of No. 19 Shing On Street, was sent to the Government Civil hospital yesterday.

Miracle of Blood Flowing from Crucifix Announced

Blood flowed from the crucifix shown here, in a miraculous manifestation, as an orphan girl knelt in prayer before it, according to announcement by the Oblate Fathers of St. Joseph, whose mother house is in Ant, Italy, where the crucifix is enshrined. This picture was taken by the canon of the Diocese of Ant and permission given to publish it and announce the miracle. A diocesan tribunal, after long watching, decided that no trickery was involved. At the right is the sanctuary of the Oblate Fathers to Agia.

USHERED OUT.

Is the Chinese Information Bureau acting as a news or a propaganda agency?—We are circulating information for the public.

At this point Mr. Bridgeman rose and with the remark, "I am extremely busy and whatever questions you have to ask must be addressed to me by letter," began to usher the reporter to the door.

"Are you Mr. Reginald Bridgeman, late of the British Foreign Office?" he was asked on the way. He replied, "I am, and you will find all about me in books of reference."

As the door was reached the reporter asked, "Is Lieut-Colonel Malone associated with this bureau?" to which Mr. Bridgeman replied, "You can also ask that question by letter."

NOT EJECTED.

With one hand Mr. Bridgeman opened the door and with the other propelled the reporter outside.

"Am I to consider myself as being ejected?" asked the reporter.

"Oh dear no. Not a bit!" answered Mr. Bridgeman, who thereupon slammed the door against his caller.

That Mr. Bridgeman was in direct communication with Mr. Chen was proved by the fact that he cabled a message to the Cantonese leader stating that he and his friends would do their best "in and out of Parliament to secure the withdrawal of armed forces from China and of warships from Chinese waters."

This message was signed by Mr. Bridgeman on behalf of a new pro-pagandist organisation styling itself the British Labour Council for Chinese Freedom, with which he was also associated as joint secretary.—Reuter Special.

CHAPEL IN BISHOP'S HOUSE

Forming a connecting link with the work of the Tao Fong Shan (Christian Mission to Buddhists) at Shatin, the Chapel in the basement of the Bishop's House, Hongkong, was consecrated by the Bishop of Victoria (Right Rev. R. Owen Hall) in the presence of a full congregation yesterday afternoon.

It is intended that the Chapel should not only serve as a centre for the work of Dr. K. L. Reichelt, Superintendent and Rector of the Tao Fong Shan, but also as a church for the Scandinavian community in the Colony.

Yesterday's service was commenced with a hymn followed by prayer by the Rev. Frank Short.

In a brief address, Dr. Reichelt welcomed the people. The day was fitting as it was Ascension Day.

The idea of having the Chapel come from Bishop Hall. The Bishop's house is the oldest place of worship in the Colony but for many years the Chapel was not used because other places of worship were built. The Tao Fong Shan was at Shatin and the consecration of the Chapel formed a connecting link. The Chapel will be used for services, lectures and special meetings. Meetings will be held on Thursdays and Sundays, for Buddhists as well as the Scandinavian community.

He thanked the friends of Tao Fong Shan and the Scandinavian community for their interest and sympathy in the work.

Portions of Scripture were then read by Very Rev. Dean A. Swann, the Rev. Frank Short, the Rev. Paul S. F. Tsao, and the Rev. N. N. Thelle, Vice-Superintendent and Treasurer at Tao Fong Shan.

After the Apostolic Creed was said, a prayer and consecration in English by the Bishop followed, the consecration being repeated in Chinese by Dr. Reichelt.

The service closed with a hymn and the Benediction.

The Christian Mission to Buddhists opened up its work in Nanking on November 1, 1922. Its aim is to give the religious people in the Far East (Buddhists, Taoists, Confucianists, etc.) an opportunity to study the Christian religion under the best possible conditions.

ENGLAND'S MISERABLE FOOTBALL AT BUDAPEST

LOSE TO HUNGARY BY 2-1

Only Defence Manages To Live Up To Reputation: Attack Fails

BLOW TO INTERNATIONAL PRESTIGE

Budapest, May 10.

With the majority of a fully representative team playing well below form, England to-day were soundly beaten by Hungary in an international football match at Budapest, losing by two goals to one after a blank first half.

Excessive heat (the thermometer registered 86 in the shade) and a grassless pitch had a telling effect on the Englishmen, who spent most of their time endeavouring to master the intricacies of ball control under such foreign conditions.

Reuter says that as a result of the defeat English soccer prestige received a severe set-back, a crowd of 40,000, including the Regent of Hungary, watching the home team proceed to record a great triumph.

The teams were presented to H.S.H. Admiral Nicholas Horthy before the start of the games, when the national anthems of both countries were played.

Cooper, the famous Derby County and International back won the toss for England, but it yielded the visitors no profit.

NO ENGLISH ATTACK.

The English attack was all astray, and could do nothing right. The Hungarians had a full measure of the exchanges in the first half, and Cooper, Haigood and Moss were constantly being called upon to relieve pressure.

These three players, in fact, were the only Englishmen to live up to reputation.

The Hungarians fully deserved their success, the foundation of which was laid 20 minutes after half-time, when Avar, at inside right, opened the scoring. Five minutes later Sarosi added a second, and it was not until a quarter of an hour later, and with only six minutes to go that Tilson, the Manchester City player, netted England's only goal following a melee.

The Hungarians played a type of football which appeared to disconcert the Englishmen. The winners were especially prominent with their headwork, whereas their opponents were distinctly disappointing, with a negligible attack.

GIANTS AMONG THE SLAIN

New York, May 10. The St. Louis Cardinals whose aspirations towards the National League pennant and World Series must now be seriously considered, recorded their eleventh win out of twelve matches to-day, when they nosed out the Giants in a brilliant display of baseball.

The two contestants for this United Kingdom Championship are Joe Davis and Tom Newman, England's best two players. Davis has beaten Newman three times this season and I think he will win this match, although there is very little between the two players.

Batting first they compiled 339 for 6 and applied the closure, Watson being leading scorer with 143.

Somerset collapsed in unexpected fashion, being sent back for 66 in their first attempt. Following on they aggregated 114, Booth taking 5 for 49, and were thus defeated by an innings and 169 runs.

ENTRIES FOR LAWN BOWLS CHAMPIONSHIPS

WELL UP TO PAST STANDARDS

TO-MORROW'S LEAGUE GAME: FIXTURES AND TEAMS

Entries for the open lawn bowls championship of the Colony, which close on Monday next, are well up to standard, and the tournament promises to be bigger than ever this summer.

Ten clubs are represented in the singles, and there are eleven entries in the rinks championship. The pairs event as usual has been well supported.

To-morrow's league programme is quite interesting. The Kowloon Bowling Green have to visit the Recreio, but should be able to retain their 100 per cent. record. Craigengower "A" appear safe to beat the K.C.C., who are the visitors.

The "Craig" second string in the senior division have a somewhat severer task, having to journey to the Civil Service, who are always formidable on their own green.

The "babes" of the league, the L.R.C. and Football Club clash in the second division. The footballers have got together a useful combination and it would not be surprising to find them beat the Indians, despite the fact that the Sookunpo players have a season's experience behind them.

The Yacht Club and Kowloon Bowling Green, present leaders of the division should both register comfortable wins.

Below will be found the programme for to-morrow, together with teams, and the entries to date for the open championships.

FITTING TRIBUTE TO JIRO SATOH

English tournaments after Wimbledon scoring many successes over V. G. Kirby, until Borotra checked his career at Queen's Club. In 1932 he beat H. E. Vines and Austin in America, and last year defeated F. J. Perry in the French championships. H. W. Austin at Wimbledon, and J. H. Crawford in the Davis Cup. The only player who had been consistently successful over Satoh was Borotra, whose speed, dash and personality always seemed to overwhelm the Japanese. Borotra had beaten Satoh on grass, hard courts and covered courts. Jiro Satoh will for long be remembered by the lawn tennis enthusiast, not so much for the brilliancy of his play or the number of championship titles he has won but as a man who played the game in the best spirit, a player whom any country would be proud to have as their captain.

L.T.A. CONDOLENCES.

The L.T.A. have sent the following cable to the Japan L.T.A. in Tokyo:—"Deeply regret death Jiro Satoh and loss caused thereby to the game in Japan."

The Australian Davis Cup team, on board s.s. "Orford," have sent the following telegram to Mr. S. Miyaguchi, European representative of the Japan L.T.A.:—"All members Australian Davis Cup team join me in expressing to you and to Japan Lawn Tennis Association sincere sympathy in the untimely death our dear comrade Jiro Satoh. We all counted it a great honour to know him as a true friend and a great sportsman, and our association with him will ever remain as a happy memory.—YOUDALE."

"The pool will likewise be carried over in the event of the winner of the first selected race being unbucked."

All About Local Racing

As I have not noticed the animal quoted in the betting, Major Ian Bullough's Campanula won the "One Thousand" in better time than Colombo did in the "Two Thousand". She started an odds on favourite and is considered to be the best filly in training. The Oaks apparently is at her mercy. Many think that she is even a better animal than Colombo but, unfortunately for Major Bullough, the two animals will not meet as Campanula is not entered for the Derby or St. Leger.

DOUBLE BETTING

Regulation Modified By Jockey Club

The Hongkong Jockey Club stewards have instituted a new rule for the daily double betting. The Jockey Club members have been advised of the change as follows: "Please note that at future race meetings of this club, in the event of the winner of the second selected race of the Double being selected as dividend, it will not be declared as holder of the winning tickets on the first race, nor heretofore, but the total pool, less a percentage deduction and refunds, if any, will be carried over and be included in the total pool of the Double on the next race day."

"The pool will likewise be carried over in the event of the winner of the first selected race being unbucked."

We're about to embark on the eighth season of organised women's cricket, writes Marjorie Pollard in the Morning Post.

The season that lies ahead is already alarming, because on the Women's Cricket Association card there are mentioned names and places that act as charms wherever cricket is mentioned.

One is Old Trafford—and the other is Australia.

The Australian Women's Cricket Council invited the W.C.A. to send out a team in October. This invitation was accepted with alacrity by the W.C.A. There seemed no reason why it should not be entered, as never missing from women's games. Women's cricket in Australia is in a strong position—there are even interstate matches, and so we must conclude that the standard of the game is high. The team that goes from England will not be representative, for the very simple and necessary reason that all players must pay their own fares between this country and Australia.

Service are all in a position to hold trials, coachings, and matches.

COUNTY ASSOCIATIONS.

I would like to say that these County Associations do not exist solely for the purpose of providing good games for the best players in the counties. Their chief objects are the fostering of clubs, the putting in touch with players who want clubs and the improvement of the general standard of play. Having done all that there seems no reason at all why county teams should not meet each other now and again. But, to put it bluntly, there will be no question of league titles, points and trophies. Women's cricket will be run on exactly the same lines as county hockey, and it will all be "friendly".

This year again we are to have District Matches, and on Wednesday, June 13, the Midland play the North on the Warwickshire ground at Edgbaston, and on Saturday, July 7, West play South at Worcester.

Yet another famous ground is to have a women's match, and that is the "Bat and Ball" Gravesham. On this a Surrey XI. will play Kent, and interest in this game will be high, as Kent XI. will be one, or even two, Miss Valentines, sisters of Mr. Suez, and back by New Zealand, Fiji and the Panama Canal.

OLD TRAFFORD.

Old Trafford is the next important name on that fixture card, and on this ground of battle, occasional sunshine and superb memories, we are to play our biggest representative match. On Saturday, July 14, England will play the Rest.

Women's cricket has never been played at Old Trafford before, though we were allowed into the sacred fastness early on in the hockey season for an England v. Rest hockey match. It was then that I saw what a perfect, what an enormous, what a terrifying place Old Trafford would be on which to play cricket.

So the two real high spots for the season are Australia and Old Trafford—and even I am a little staggered at being able to write those words in connection with women's cricket.

Now to more lowly thing. County Associations are under way this season. There are not many as yet, it is true, but Kent, Lancashire, Surrey, Middlesex, Nottingham, and Civil

B. H. Valentino, and Surrey have probably more well-known women cricketers than any other county. They can call upon Miss Straker, Miss M. Turner, Miss E. Turner, Miss Goldsmith, Miss M. Hill, and Miss M. Macleigan.

Some of the most important fixtures for the coming season are:

boxing champion and runner-up to Queensland Les ("Rusty") Cook for Australian honours."

Residents of Bendigo, Victoria, the home town of Australian diving champion Ron Masters, have already started a fund to send him abroad and the response to date augurs well for its success.

And the latest development is a move by Victorian school teachers to get Miss Doris Carter, the record-smashing high jumper, to London.

It is a matter that the Australian British Empire Games Association might reconsider without delay.

DOUBLE-BARRELLED PROTEST

Empire Games Selections

Allegedly Faulty

A double-barrelled protest is being sent by Queensland Amateur Athletic Association to the Amateur Athletic Union of Australia on the Empire Games selections.

Fault is being found with the method of selection and the choice of Howard Yates (Victorian) at the expense of Noel Dempsey (Queensland), his conqueror.

Commenting on the matter, Mr. Don Merritt, life member, said that more outstanding contenders in Don McLardy (Victoria) and George Golding (N.S.W.) had been omitted for his benefit.

Queensland councillors agreed that the only fit and proper method was for the Union to state the order of preference for its athletes. It would then be only the duty of the adviser to fight

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract Problem.

The terms used in the game of bridge have been carried down for well over one hundred years. They came from the game of whist.

All trick plays in the old days were termed "coups." There were the Bath coup, the grand coup, the Vienna coups and others. However, I sometimes wonder if bridge players haven't misused the word.

The distinction between a simple coup and a grand coup is that, to complete a grand coup, you must trump a good card. You can make the same kind of play, but if the card you trump is not an established card, the play is only a simple coup.

It is true that it is harder to trump a good card than a worthless one. To-day's hand is an example of a grand coup.

The Play:

East's opening lead was the eight of diamonds. The jack was

West's king held the trick.

West returned a small diamond, hoping that his partner could ruff, and dummy's nine won the trick. Declarer returned the six of spades from dummy and finessed the ten, which held.

A small club was led and dummy's jack finessed. When it held, the four of spades was played from dummy, declarer finessing the jack, and East's nine spot dropped, warning the declarer that the two remaining trump were in the West hand.

Declarer now led a small heart. East went in with the ace and, of course, was helpless. If he returned club, it would be into declarer's queen; so he elected to return a small heart.

The ten was played from dummy. This was a winning card, but the declarer realized that he must shorten his hand in trump, so he literally discarded a trump on the dummy's good ten of hearts.

He then led a small diamond and won in dummy with the ace. The king of hearts was played and the six of diamonds discarded. Declarer then led the good queen of

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

It was a gigantic task to edit the 700,000 feet of film of "Devil Tiger," Fox Film's sensational animal-adventure picture, which was nearly a year in the making in the Asiatic jungles, has recently been completed. It is now the feature attraction at the King's Theatre. It was in October, 1932, that Clyde E. Elliott, who directed "Bring 'Em Back Alive," left Hollywood with a cast headed by Marion Burns, Kane Richmond and Harry Woods, and started for the other side of the world. A year later, he returned and started the arduous job of editing miles of wild animal fights and other thrillers down 7,000 feet. It is the first time in the history of sound pictures that a screen drama has been made in its entirety in the virgin jungles of Asia. "We spent a whole year on the job, but the results prove that we were justified," declared Elliott. "It was not a case of throwing animals into a pen and making them fight. We had five cameras, a specially constructed sound unit, and we stationed our cameramen in steel cages at various spots the animals frequent. Then we waited for the clashes. It took three weeks to get our elephant stampede scene near Simla. We spent a week getting the tiger-crocodile battle in India. More than 25,000 feet of film were exposed in shooting this fight which was made with the aid of artificial lights. The fight started shortly after dark and lasted for six hours. Four cameras were operated on the battle." Elliott believes this production will prove a long stop toward the often-discussed idea of rendering complete filming units, including Hollywood casts, to far corners of the world to make productions in their entirety.

"Queen Christina"

"Queen Christina," Greta Garbo's first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture in two years, which opens simultaneously at the Queen's and Alhambra Theatres, promises to make film historians for three decades. It is planned Garbo with John Gilbert after a seven-year separation of five years, and brings him out of retirement for a triumphant return to pictures. It is the picture that Garbo has wanted to do all her life because Queen Christina of Sweden is her favorite historical character; it is the most ambitious film production with sets that rival the Field of the Cloth of Gold for size and beauty that is to be seen in recent years. Miss Garbo in the title role devoted many months of laborious research in Swedish museums to collect data, all information available, and hundreds of old plates and engravings to make the picture authentic. John Gilbert, who left films to devote himself to directing and writing, emerged from screen retirement at Miss Garbo's request to play the impetuous role of Antonio, the Spanish Ambassador with whom Christina fell in love. Ian Keith, noted Shakespearean actor of the stage, is seen as Magnus, Christina's Lord Treasurer and the burr beneath the Swedish saddle of state. Lewis Stone, as Chancellor Oxenstierna, Christina's counsellor and faithful tutor in state affairs, appears in his seventh role with Miss Garbo in as many pictures. Elizabeth Young, a newcomer to the screen but a talented young actress, was chosen by Director Robert Mamoulian, whose last achievement was in "Song of Songs," to play the only other important feminine part in the picture—that of Ebba, Christina's lady-in-waiting. Others in the cast are: as King—John Gilbert; as Queen—Elizabeth Young; as newcome to the screen but a talented young actress, was chosen by Director Robert Mamoulian, whose last achievement was in "Song of Songs," to play the only other important feminine part in the picture—that of Ebba, Christina's lady-in-waiting. DEATH MYSTERY COOLIES CARRY DEAD MAN TO HOSPITAL

Two chair coolies, unwittingly carrying to hospital the body of a dead Chinese, provided the police with a curious problem to solve late last night.

The coolie stated that about 9 p.m. two Chinese approached them in Chung Wo Lane with another man whom they asked them to take to the Government Civil Hospital. Thinking that the man was unwell, they complied. They had gone some distance when they found that the two men had disappeared, but they continued with their burden to the hospital. There, when they tried to rouse him, they found that the man was dead.

An examination at the hospital showed that the man had a fractured skull. He was of middle age and apparently of moderate weight.

The coolies were questioned

but could throw no light on the affair and the police were pursuing the possibility of the man having been engaged in an affray or having been charitably dispatched to hospital by two passers-by who, when it occurred to them that they might come under suspicion, slipped away.

CANTON HEALTH

AMALGAMATION OF TWO OLDEST HOSPITALS

Public spirited citizens of Hongkong and Canton have gathered together in various groups at different times to discuss plans for a large Medical Centre for South China, according to the Canton Gazette. Under the directorship of the Alumni of the Hackett Medical College and You Tsai Hospital the affiliation of the entire medical forces existing into one compact group which is now in process has been decided upon. The Hackett Medical College is to be part of the Medical department of Lingnan University, the Canton Hospital and You Tsai Hospital to be part of the medical centre. This will bring together two of the oldest medical institutions in South China.

The plans are not only to bring the institutions under one head, but also aim at expansion and reorganization and laying of foundations for advanced Medical Research which is much needed in China. It is the demand for scientific medicine and research in China, and the lack of scientific medicine for the proper treatment of the poor together with the demand for good physicians to aid in the interior parts of China that call for such action. Both Canton and You Tsai Hospitals have long been recognized as foremost in the field in administration to the poor and for the advancement of medical care.

These plans call for the erection of two new hospitals, the rebuilding of the Canton Hospital, and the putting up by the You Tsai Hospital of building which could care for 300 patients daily with the hospital alone. With these two institutions for clinical work, and the Hackett Medical College for the teaching institution there would come into existence one of the finest Medical Centres in China.

The Centre is being made possible with generous donations from

CANTON SUGAR TAX.

ABOLITION ANNOUNCED FOR NATIVE PRODUCT

In a circular notification, the Canton Department of Finance announced on Wednesday that in order to encourage development of native industries, tax on domestic sugar is to be abolished as from May 11. Imported sugar will be taxed as usual, says the Canton Gazette.

It will be noted that following the establishment of the sugar refinery under the management of the Agriculture and Forestation Bureau, products of that factory are forthcoming to meet the great demand of the market, and abolition of the tax will certainly give a boom to the sale of the sugar produced in Kwangtung.

The Kwangtung 3-Year Plan calls for the erection of several sugar mills, of which the largest will be in Watchow. When these mills are in operation, there will be much residue left after the sugar has been refined. The Department of Reconstruction intends to use this stuff in the distillation of alcohol.

MILL STARTS WORKING.

The new Government sugar refinery in Sancho region of Punyu district commenced operation on May 8 under the supervision of Dr. Kirby, an American sugar expert, it was learned at the Department of Reconstruction, according to the Canton Daily Sun.

During the initial stage, raw sugar shipped to the province will be refined. When the Canton sugar cane crop is harvested it will be used in place of imported raw sugar.

To enable farmers to grow sugar cane, the Bureau of Agriculture and Forestation has opened a loan office in Sancho.

CHINA'S IMMENSE TASK OF RECONSTRUCTION

Dr. Rajchmann's Visit to London

CO-OPERATION OF LEAGUE

JAPAN'S ANTAGONISM A HANDICAP?

SIR ARTHUR SALTER INTERVIEWED

(From Our Own Correspondent).

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 11, 11.09 a.m.)

LONDON, MAY 11. DR. RAJCHMANN, WHOSE REMARKABLE REPORT ON THE ACTIVITIES OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS' EXPERTS IN CHINA UNDER HIS SUPERVISION AND PROGRAMME OF COORDINATION IS TO-DAY GIVEN CONSIDERABLE PROMINENCE IN ALL THE LONDON NEWSPAPERS, AS WELL AS ATTRACTING A SEMI-OFFICIAL PROTEST FROM JAPAN, HAS JUST CONCLUDED A BRIEF VISIT TO LONDON.

The magnitude of the task and the progress made in tackling the great problems are emphasised, and Dr. Rajchmann's excellent work is applauded.

In a brief interview yesterday afternoon, before leaving London for Geneva, Dr. Rajchmann stated that the purpose of his trip to London was to meet and discuss certain matters with Mr. Quo Tai-chi, the Chinese Ambassador, and Sir Arthur Salter, the famous economic expert who has taken a close interest in the economic development of China.

SIR ARTHUR SALTER.

Sir Arthur Salter, in an interview with your correspondent, explained the reason for Dr. Rajchmann's departure from China. It was, he said, because the China situation required his personal appearance in Geneva.

He added that the question of whether Dr. Rajchmann would return to China would doubtless be decided after matters had been talked over in Geneva.

JAPAN'S ANTAGONISM.

Mr. Quo Tai-chi said he would like to endorse the Rajchmann Report and expressed the opinion that with the full co-operation of the League of Nations, China would be in a much better position to withstand the threats of the Japanese.

Nevertheless, it is believed in some quarters in London that Japan's antagonism to Dr. Rajchmann is likely seriously to affect the fruition of the plans he has evolved.—Our Own Correspondent.

DEVELOPING OWN RESOURCES

Implications Of The Rajchmann Report

London, May 11. Dr. Rajchmann's appointment and the fact that the Japanese are not represented on the China Committee of the League of Nations' Council are probably contributory causes of the recent semi-official expostulations of the Japanese Government, says The Times commenting upon the Rajchmann Report to the League.

It is evident, indeed, says the Journal, from a study of the Rajchmann Report that the Chinese are very definitely being taught to develop their own resources upon an unprecedented scale.

ENORMOUS NEW MARKET.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times, who cables this information, adds that the silver leaders in Congress have assured the President that the word of the White House is law where silver is concerned.—Reuter.

On the whole, however, it seems most likely that a reorganised and prosperous China will in the long run create an enormously augmented market for foreign imports.

The great Republic in the Far East must seek its help in the manner suited to it best.

NO LOAN APPLICATION.

Up to the present, China has not applied to the League of Nations for a loan and foreign aid in this respect may properly be deprecated until the credit of the railway administration has been fully re-established and security is felt that the loans will be employed for the purposes to which they are destined.

In general, there can be no doubt that the world as a whole will welcome a better organised China and will regard her enhanced prosperity as a common advantage.—Reuter.

INEFFICIENCY OF H.K. ARTISAN

IMPORTANT REPORT BY EXPERT

TRADE SCHOOL PROPOSALS

CARELESSNESS OF WORKMEN

An important report on the question of establishing Trade Schools in the Colony, drawn up by Mr. George White, Principal of the Junior Technical School, was laid on the table at yesterday's meeting of the Legislative Council.

The report arose out of a feeling that, following the inauguration of the Junior Technical school, investigation of the potential value of various types of Trade Schools should be carried out, and for this purpose Mr. White last year visited the Trade School and other technical institutions in Malaya, with a view to studying their organisation, equipment and cost.

Mr. White's report is an exhaustive survey of the work of the Malaya institutions, showing how far the methods and organisations of these schools might be applied in Hongkong.

Dealing with the cost of training Mr. White states that the cost of training a boy up to Junior Cambridge standard and equipping him with a Trade School training is high, and recommends specialising at an earlier stage in the event of similar institutions being founded in Hongkong.

TWO WAYS.

"The improvement of the standard of manual skill in the engineering trades," he says, "can be accomplished in two ways, either (a) by giving better education and training to the sons of artisans, when there is a resident artisan population available or (b) by introducing the sons of better class families to manual occupations by such a channel as the Trade School."

"As regards Hongkong I favour the former procedure. An undue number of boys recruited at (b) would tend to confine promotion to this class and might depress the sons of the artisan class to a coolie condition."

HEAVY ENGINEERING.

Referring to the heavy engineering trades the report states:—The similarity between the types of apprenticeship required by the Hongkong Dockyard and the Federated Malay States Railway Central Workshops is remarkable. Both desire to train their own apprentices on practical work and require of the educational system that it should provide them with apprentices with a sound general education, with a pronounced engineering bias if available. The size of the machines operated in the Dockyards, the enormous pieces of machinery to be handled and machined, make it quite clear that a boy trained in a trade school would be unsuitable for direct employment as a journeyman in a heavy engineering workshop.

The experiment of the Federated Malay States Railway of taking in passed Trade School students as improvers should be closely followed.

The ideal scheme of instruction is along such lines as have been operating successfully at Kuala Lumpur Technical School viz.—practical training in the works combined with a carefully co-ordinated system of training in the Technical School; the whole to be based on a second pre-apprenticeship training.

AUTOMOBILE REPAIRS.

The automobile repair trade, the report continues, lends itself

DEBT CAULDRON ON THE BOIL

State Department's Final Ruling

Washington, May 10. The State Department has finally ruled that mere token payments from debtor nations in future will constitute default within the meaning of the Johnson Act.—Reuter.

CAMPAIGN BEGUN IN CALIFORNIA

PERSECUTION OUTCRY

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 11, 11.00 a.m.)

Chicago, May 10. An effort was made to-day to secure the release of Mr. Samuel Insull who is awaiting trial in Cook County Gaol, on a writ of habeas corpus.

The application was refused.

Chicago, May 10. On the eve of Mr. Samuel Insull's arraignment here, an Insull Defence League opened a campaign in Altura, California, a mountainous township of two thousand inhabitants, who held a mass meeting urging a National Insull Defence Campaign.

The meeting passed a resolution bitterly protesting against the Government for allowing John ("The Killer") Dillinger to remain at large while Insull has been persecuted beyond understanding.—Reuter.

BRITISH DESTROYER IN COLLISION

Damaged in Mishap Off Start Point

London, May 19. H.M.S. Whirlwind, of the Fifth Destroyer Flotilla, was in collision at 10.51 a.m. to-day with the merchant ship, Luinmeach, 1,074 tons, belonging to the Limerick Steamship Company, about ten miles west from Start Point.

The bows of both ships were damaged but no member of either crew suffered injury. Both vessels reached Dartmouth under their own steam.—British Wireless.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET EASY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was easy yesterday. Business done, 2,130,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: Stocks went down in new low of the year due to a combination of factors, including the reported closing out of some weekend margin accounts plus a break in rails and farm equipments due to the midwest drought which is feared will reduce grain earlindings. The market stood near the close due to a spectacular upturn in wheat which went up the five cent limit due to sensational drought news indicating no relief in sight. Curb followed the Stock market steady near the close. Bonds were generally downward, excepting U.S. Government which rose to new highs, attributed to demand by banks, insurance companies and private investors who are confident of the Administration's ultimate fiscal competence.

Our New York office cables: Stocks: Subjected to two sharp selling movements which were reported to be largely professional and recovered fairly well. Irregular trend is likely but it could recover sharply on any constructive news. Wheat: Dust storms and public entering the market pushed it up to the five cent limit. Much higher prices are forecast as North America is facing a major crop calamity. Cotton: Fenturales awaiting clarification of the silver programme. Basis firm. Rubber: Early weakness in response to London & Singapore. Urgent liquidation appears ended and substantial trading on the docket improves the technical position. Sugar: Slightly reactionary but technically and statistically sound. The Sugar Bill was signed. Silver: After an initial decline due to overnight accumulations and stop-loss selling, the market rallied on intense May buying apparently originating from the usual source and also on conflicting statements from Washington interpreted by speculators that something will be done for silver.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

CREAM SOUP

An Ideal Dish For All Children

"Soup of the evening, beautiful soup!"

The Mock Turtle, stout fellow, was doubtless advertising his own particular brand on the occasion of uttering this paean of praise, but such is the virtue of soup in general on the family menu, that almost any housewife might echo him. Especially if it were a cream vegetable soup he had in mind. For there is no better way of getting an adequate supply of milk and vegetables into the stomachs of little children than by a soup combination.

Calories, vitamins, nourishment, all are there. The only element milk lacks to make it a perfect food is iron and the vegetables will supply that.

Bear in mind, too, that skimmed milk can be used to advantage with butter added to make up the fat content.

Preserving Vitamins

Laboratory tests have shown that from 15 to 60 per cent of the food value of most vegetables disappears into the water in which the vegetables are cooked. An even larger percentage of minerals and some vitamins are lost in the water. When the water is used in soup, all these are preserved.

Cream soups are easy to make but seasoning is of great importance.

This youthful frock, which can also be made with net and lace, lends wistful charm to the slender figure. And so easily made. Designed in four sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20, with corresponding bust measure of 33½, 35, 36½ and 38, size 18 requires 6½ yards of 39-inch material. With the skirt cut on bias, size 18 requires only 5½ yards of 39-inch material. The sash of ribbon requires 2½ yards.

Cream soups are easy to make but seasoning is of great importance.

The texture should be smooth and of cream-like consistency. A lumpy, too-thick soup is far from appetizing.

Toasted sticks, croutons, tiny marble-like dumplings, crisp crackers, thin "Melba" chips and any crisp bit of breadstuff add interest as well as food value to the plate of soup.

Garnishings

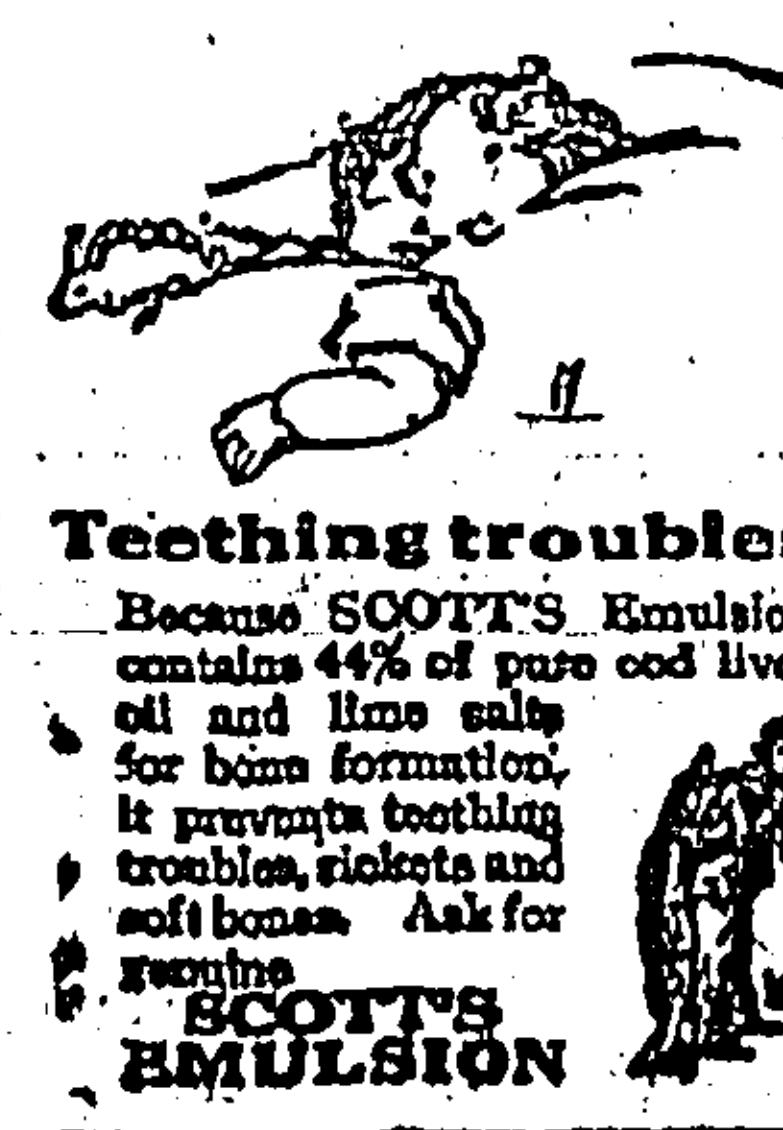

Garnishings also must not be overlooked because they add much to the allure of soups. "Coin spots" of paprika, a sprinkling of minced parsley, a bit of grated cheese or a few whole pieces of vegetable dropped in just before serving are simple, easily prepared garnishes. Salted whipped cream may be used for a rather formal cream soup.

To make the simplest cream soup, merely add one cup of sifted vegetables to one cup of well-seasoned medium white sauce. The juice which elapses to the vegetables thins the sauce to the desired consistency. This is a splendid way to use small amount of left-over vegetables.

CHAPTER XLV

Marcia left Pabito in a mood that was a mixture of relief and the utmost bitterness. All these years he had been suffering for a crime he had not committed. Suffering loneliness and hopelessness and the loss of the one girl in the world he loved. All these years—

Lottie came into the room. "What's the matter, honey boy?" she demanded carlessly.

"Nothing." "You look it! Beau's gone—" Pabito looked up quickly at that.

"Decided he needed a change of air," Lottie added lightly. "Did you listen to what we were saying?" he demanded. She answered with a nonchalant, easy, "Sure."

"He wasn't going to give Beau away," Pabito said, frowning.

"Oh, he knew that," she answered, "but that woman who was here might any time. See?"

"Yes, I see."

He pulled himself up wearily and moved toward the doorway opening on the balcony. Everything in his life had come too late. If March Treadway had told the truth a few years earlier nothing in the world could have kept him from marrying Estelle. Now—

"Let's go over and see what they're doin' on the house this afternoon," Lottie suggested.

"If you like," he agreed.

"Say, if you don't wanna go, just say so! Nobody's going to make you do it."

"I want to all right. I'm just a little tired, I guess."

"Do you love me, Pablo? Love me a little bit, uh?"

"I've asked you to marry me, Lottie."

Her face clouded.

"I know I'm not very demonstrative," he admitted. "I'm sorry."

"You ain't much good at pretendin'," she said harshly. But he thought he was a little better at pretending than she knew.

"Be a little patient with me, will you, Lottie?" he asked; not quite steadily.

But even her love for him could not teach her patience. Soon Lottie was crying and he was obliged to comfort her and pretend some more.

"You do love me, don't you?" she said, mopping her eyes and choking back the last of her sobs.

"Of course I do, Lottie," he said dully. "I'm a lucky chap and I know it."

"You'll never know how I love you, Pablo. Never!"

"You're awfully good to me, Lottie."

"Good? Kiss me, honey. Oh—not like that!"

What if he should drop his arms and say, "I can't go through with it, Lottie! I can't!" What would happen then? He had not known she would be so demanding for demonstrations of affection. He must have known that pretence could be so hard.

Estelle wrote Pabito that evening. She had to send the letter by post because there was no chauffeur now to carry messages. She wrote:

"Dear Pabito: It is good to write your real name without fear. Marcia has told my father and me what she has told you, too. I am so glad for you. I have not for a long while been so glad about anything."

"I want to see you and wonder whether you will want to come to see me. It has been a long time since we have met but, remembering our hours together as I have so keenly since being here, I feel that—oh, I don't know. I can't express it.

"I hurt you horribly, I know. Perhaps if I had been stronger I would have seen some way to avoid doing that. But I want to tell you now that I love you as much as I can ever love anyone and I will marry you if you still want me to.—Estelle."

Pabito recited the note slowly, his eyes blurred by the dizziness that had swept over him as he read it the first time. Then the servant appeared at the top of the stairs and behind her Pabito saw—Norris Noyes!

For a moment Noyes paused; then he moved forward with a weak, groping "Pabito!"

Pabito clung to Noyes' hands. The two made the small meaningless comments people make when emotions are too great to be expressed by words. At length Pabito said, "I have never needed you so much as now—"

And even Noyes, in his humbleness, could believe that. Pabito was thin. His eyes were tired and his lips were set to that grim line which tells of a vast determination and an equally vast hopelessness.

"What's wrong?" the older man asked.

"It's nothing that can be changed," Pabito assured him. "I wouldn't even bother you about it but you know I've always told you everything—" For a moment he pressed the letter in his pocket, then abruptly his hand dropped.

He had no right to press that letter nor feel a shenken and ecstatic warmth as he touched it. He must write Estelle and tell her he was engaged to be married. To write her that after she had told him she loved him as much as she could love anyone!

"A man named Billings sent a note to you," Noyes said, "but I forgot it. I left it on the bureau propped before the glass but I was so excited—"

"We'll get it when we get your things," Pabito said. He put an arm around Noyes, stooped shoulders and for a short moment forgot that things had a way of coming to him too late.

She liked Noyes and called him a "good old scout," but his eyes, as they rested on her, were too frankly appraising for her comfort. She affected little mannerisms underthings of orchid, peach and sapphire chiffon. Collecting this finery, she came as close to happiness as she had been since Pabito had asked her to marry him. Sometimes in the nights Lottie woke with tears on her cheeks. Pabito was not happy, she knew. Well, she vowed in her bravest mood, she'd make him so. But at other times she realized she did not know how to make him happy.

She went to La Merced a good deal those days. The church appealed to her and warmed her a little as she struggled to be near that embracing, comforting Someone who was spoken of so easily and often as "God."

And here among the women who knelt with devout eyes on the altar Lottie would sometimes pray ardently in her own manner: "God, I haven't gone so very straight but, honest, I promise you if you just give me this chance—"

She liked Noyes and called him a "good old scout," but his eyes, as they rested on her, were too frankly appraising for her comfort. She affected little mannerisms when with him. An airy "My dear," was one of her favourites. It sounded old as she leaned forward to say, "Honest to God, my dear—"

Noyes pitted the girl deeply but was distracted at the thought of her becoming Pabito's wife.

He said one morning after Lottie had lost her temper and thrown a cup of tea at the fast disappearing servant, "Pabito, you can't marry that girl!"

"But I'm going to," Pabito said grimly. "I owe her a lot," he added more gently, "and she cares for me. Besides, I've already asked her. The thing's done."

"Things can be undone."

There was no answer to that. Presently Noyes went on, "I've heard that you cared for Jim Field's daughter."

"I still do," Pabito let himself say.

"Then you're not being fair to her—to Lottie."

"I'm sorry," Pabito shook his head. "I can't talk about it. Besides, it's all settled."

The next lecture will be held during September, when Mr. A. Bianconi, Italian Consul General, will speak on the subject "The Jesuits in China and the Work of Matteo Ricci."

The British Municipal Police in Shameen have handed over to the City authorities a young Subanian, who was arrested by a plainclothes constable after being found in the bedroom of a residence on the Bund with alleged stolen goods in his possession.

LINGNAM GLEE CLUB

"THE GYPSY ROVER" PRESENTED

Canton, May 9.

The Lingnam "I" Glee Club gave a most delightful entertainment in the Canton Club Theatre last night when they presented "The Gypsy Rover." Although styled in the programme as a musical comedy, it was more in the nature of an operetta. The parts were all taken by Chinese students, girls and boys, who spoke English extremely well; in fact, some with a real Oxford drawl, as the parts required. The costumes were colourful and

TRAFFIC CASES

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE WITHDRAWN

At the Central Magistracy, before Mr. Hamilton this morning, the manslaughter charge against Tam Chun alias Tam Wong, who was alleged to have knocked down a woman in Queen's Road West and then driven off after turning off his lights, was withdrawn by the police.

Mr. Hamilton, discharging the defendant, said he was informed by the police that there seemed to be a possibility that it was not his lorry which was concerned. The victim of the accident, Shiu Tong, aged 50, died from her injuries.

At a previous hearing, Traffic Inspector Nicoll stated that a number of witnesses recognised the lorry by the characters on its side, but they did not see its number.

A.M. Rocha, driver of private car No. 3276, was cautioned on a summons of having failed to keep to his left. Inspector Nicoll said defendant did not drive round the Beacon when proceeding from Chater Road into Peader Street near the Post Office.

"THIS DOG BUSINESS"

ANOTHER PROSECUTION FAILS

Another prosecution by the police with regard to the alleged bringing in of dogs from the New Territories was dismissed by the Kowloon Magistrate (Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones) this morning. A lorry driver, Soon Chan-lin, was summoned for bringing a dog into Kowloon from the Territories without a certificate from the Colonial Veterinary Surgeon.

Traffic Sergeant Brittan told his Worship that defendant was driving a lorry on April 20 at Tsui Wan Hill when he was stopped. In the lorry was a dog. Defendant admitted that he had no certificate from the C.V.S., and Sergeant Brittan accordingly took a summons against him.

His Worship held that when defendant was stopped, he was not committing an offence, because he had not yet brought the dog into the Colony. An offence was only committed when a dog was brought within the boundary marked by Boundary Street. The summons was accordingly dismissed.

FIFTY CENTS A MONTH

ORDER FOR PAYMENT OF $43.20

At the Supreme Court this morning, Ganga Singh, registered money-lender, appeared as prosecutor in a writ issued on Tsang Chee On and others for $43.20.

Mr. Justice Jacks (to defendant): Do you admit this debt?—Yes, your Lordship. I offer for 40 cents a month;

How much do you earn?—$10 a month, and I have to support my mother.

You must pay $1 a month—I cannot afford to pay that. My mother is over 60 and cannot work. Are you sure that you only earn $10 a month?—Yes, your Lordship.

All right. Fifty cents a month; first payment on June 1.

RE-ALIGNMENTS IN EUROPE

MYSTERY FIRE AT SHAMSHUIPO

HOUSES BADLY DAMAGED

A fire which broke out in Fook Wing Street, Shamshui Po district, in the early hours of this morning involved houses No. 98 and 100, the first floors of both of which were severely damaged by the conflagration.

The ground floor of No. 100 was used as a knitting factory, while the first floor of both houses are tenement dwellings.

A police report states that as everybody had disappeared from the place, suspicions have been aroused.

Shortly after 3 o'clock a call was sent through to the Mongkok Fire Station, and three appliances under Mr. A. J. Cash attended, as well as two fire engines, under Mr. G. C. Moss, from the Kowloon Station.

In another outbreak in Shun Wan village, Tai Po district, a storeroom was destroyed, damage being to the extent of over $500. A woman, Wong Tai-yuen, suspected of arson, has since been sent to the Government Mental Hospital, as she is believed to be insane.

R.A.F. CORPORAL CHARGED

ALLEGED MOTOR OFFENCES

Three charges were brought against Corporal Eric George Herbert, of the Royal Air Force, when he was summoned before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for (1) failing to drive with due care and caution in Sankung Road on April 28, (2) failing to make a report to the nearest police station after coming in collision with a man, and (3) failing to stop after a collision.

Traffic Inspector Saunders alleged that at 11 a.m. on the day in question, defendant knocked down a coolie in Sankung Road and failed to stop. The coolie was still in hospital, suffering from a broken leg, and it would be at least two weeks before he would be discharged.

His Worship remanded the case for two weeks.

Defendant entered pleas of not guilty against all three charges.

UGANDA COTTON PRODUCTION

RECORD ESTABLISHED LAST YEAR

London, May 10. Lord Derby, at the annual meeting of the British Cotton Growing Association, referring to production increase within the Empire during the year, said the honours went to Uganda, which produced nearly 300,000 bales of cotton. This was a record for that Protectorate and an increase of 90,000 bales over the previous year.

He appealed to Lancashire spinners who spin low counts and to manufacturers and shippers of cloth to give a preference to Indian cotton.—British Wireless.

BIG BRUSSELS EXHIBITION

BRITAIN TO ERECT PAVILION

London, May 10. In view of the importance of next year's International Exhibition at Brussels, both commercial and political, the Government has decided to participate, and the Belgian Government has been informed of this decision.

It is the intention of the British Government to erect an official pavilion.

Eighteen countries are taking part in the exhibition, including France, Germany and Italy.—British Wireless.

BEHIND THE SCENES AT GENEVA

BALKANS AND THE LITTLE ENTENTE

FIVE FOREIGN MINISTERS

Geneva, May 10. Anticipation of the collapse of the disarmament conference is giving rise to talk of political re-alignments in Europe.

Indications that important developments, tending towards closer union in the Balkans, may occur behind the scenes of the forthcoming meeting of the Council of the League of Nations are provided by the news of the promised attendance of five foreign ministers from Eastern Europe.

They are:

- Tewfik Rustu Bey (Turkey)
- M. Titulescu (Romania)
- M. Yovtchitch (Yugo-Slavia)
- Dr. Benes (Czechoslovakia)
- Colonel Beck (Poland)

NOTABLE FACTS.

It is a notable fact that most of these Ministers are from countries who are not members of the League Council and for whom there, therefore, exists no special reason for attendance at Geneva at the time of the Council meeting.

It is significant, too, that Tewfik Rustu and Colonel Beck have just paid official visits to Bucharest, the Romanian capital.

This remarkable diplomatic activity seems to suggest that some closer ties between the Little Entente and the Balkan States are being elaborated.—Reuter.

LOITERING AT WHARF

SHIP'S CATERER CONVICTED

Fung Pang, a caterer aboard the river steamer Lung Shan, was convicted by Mr. MacIntyre in the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of loitering at the Wing Lok Street wharf and was sentenced to a fine of $20 or two weeks' hard labour in default. Defendant was discharged on a charge of stealing $3 in Chinese twenty-cent piece from a travelling trader, as the complainant was away in the country.

Detective-Sergeant Goodwin stated that at 2.50 a.m. on May 6, district watchman No. 51 Cheung Kai-wing, was on duty in Connaught Road West near the Wing Lok Street wharf when he heard shouts of "Stealing!" He saw the defendant run up the gang-plank of the Nam Tao Ferry launch San Hung On, on to the wharf, and to the "Praya" with the complainant in pursuit. He joined in the chase. Defendant wore socks but no shoes. He ran along Wing Lok Street West and stopped at the doorway of house No. 202, where the watchman arrested him.

After the watchman had given evidence, the defendant stated that while sitting on the deck of the ferry boat he saw a man run past him and at the same time heard shouts from the lower deck.

1933 Account.—The amount standing at credit of this Account is $1,749,174.96. Out of this sum it is further recommended that an interim dividend of $3.60 per share be paid, absorbing $180,000.00, the balance of $1,569,174.96 being carried forward.

Consulting Committee.—Mr. A. H. White resigned his seat on departure from the Colony and Mr. S. T. Williamson was invited to fill the vacancy; Mr. F. A. Joseph accepted an invitation to join the Consulting Committee and both these appointments now require the confirmation of Shareholders. Sir Robert Ho Tung, Messrs. D. E. Clark, A. H. Compton, L. Dunbar, T. E. Pearce and J. H. Taggart now retire but, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

What happened to the ten people chasing?—They all returned to the launch after my arrest.

The watchman, recalled, said he only saw the defendant and the complainant running on the boat. Defendant admitted a previous conviction for stealing in April last year.

MR. ORLANDO BRIDGEMAN AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT

STOCK EXCHANGE BUILDING OPENING CEREMONY PERFORMED

There were no signs of depression in Ice House Street this morning when the opening of the new Stock Exchange Building took place.

There was a large and distinguished gathering at the ceremony which was performed by Mr. G. H. Potts, chairman of the Stock Exchange. Among those present, in addition to members of the Exchange, were the Hon. Sir William Shenton, the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, the Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor, Mr. M. J. Brean, Messrs. M. J. B. Montargis, C. A. de Roza, C. L. Sandes, Leung Kam-fai, Li Tse-fong, H. Seth, F. A. Joseph, S. M. Churn, C. Champkin, C. Little, H. C. Macnamara, E. M. Des Voeux, R. E. Rodgers and many others.

Members of the Committee present were Messrs. J. Gould, N. V. A. Croucher, A. Nissim and F. Kew.

Mr. Potts opened the door of the new Exchange with a golden key, fashioned as a replica of the building and bearing the inscription:—"Hongkong Stock Exchange: Opened on 11th May, 1934, by Mr. G. H. Potts, Chairman."

Mr. Potts said:—"On behalf of members of the Hongkong Stock Exchange I declare this room open." "PLAY THE GAME."

At a subsequent reception the prosperity and success of the Exchange was proposed by Sir William Shenton, and Mr. Potts, replying, said with such a magnificent building it was up to members to really play the game. They had had many ups and many downs. Latterly they had been going down, but with their high building they would be climbing up to progress. He invited those present to take that opportunity of seeing the building. All their rooms had been let, with the exception of the first floor, which would be occupied shortly.

It was very nice, he said to see so many guests present and he hoped they would all be future clients. His office was in the building (daughter). Mr. Potts then toasted "Success" to the architects, Messrs. Little, Alkins and Wood. The toast was cordially honoured.

MAN WITH STRANGE CLIMAX TO CAREER

LEAGUE AGAINST IMPERIALISM

HOME SECRETARY ON WATCH

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Message. Ordinance, 1931. Received May 10, 1934.)

London, May 10. Mr. Reginald Francis Orlando Bridgeman, C.M.G., M.V.O., a cousin of Lord Bradford, and at one time a highly regarded member of British diplomatic service, has again come before the public eye in dramatic fashion.

He is now Secretary of the British Section of the Communist League Against Imperialism and has opened offices in London for the purpose of directing the activities of the group.

In the House of Commons today, the Home Secretary, Sir John Gilmour, replying to various questions relating to the strange climax to Mr. Bridgeman's quite honourable career, said he was keeping an eye on the organisation of which Mr. Bridgeman had publicly acknowledged himself to be Secretary.

Sir John Gilmour added that Mr. Bridgeman and his aides had previously operated from Germany. They were expelled by the Nazi Government owing to their subversive activities and had established themselves in London.

HONGKONG RECOLLECTIONS.

Mr. Bridgeman will be remembered in Hongkong by reason of his connection round about 1928 with Mr. Eugene Chen and the mysterious so-called Chinese Information Bureau, at 65 Belgrave Road, Minister, S.W., whose methods bore a striking resemblance to those of the former Russian Information Bureau, which was the chief instrument for Bolshevik propaganda in Britain.

Soon after, Mr. Bridgeman was revealed also as the Secretary of the League of Anti-Imperialism, when he, together with Mr. James Maxton and Mr. S. Salterval, the Communist M.P., were detained at Ostend and ordered to return to England, when on their way to attend meeting of the League of Anti-Imperialism at Cologne.

EDUCATED AT HARROW.

Mr. Bridgeman was educated at Harrow, and at the age of 19 was appointed honorary Attaché to the British Embassy at Madrid. Shortly after he began his service at the Paris Embassy, he attended the coronation of the King as a Gold Staff Officer, and between 1912 and 1919 he was twice private secretary to Ambassadors in France—the late Lord Bertie and Lord Derby.

Until 1921 he was successively Chargé d'Affaires at Vienna and Tehran. Mr. Bridgeman, who was at a time described in "Who's Who?" as "unemployed since 1922," and in the "Foreign Office List" as having "retired on a pension, July 1, 1923," was appointed a M.V.O. in 1914 and was made a C.M.G. in 1917.

CHINESE BUREAU IN LONDON.

When the Chinese Information Bureau was in being, a Daily Mail representative called and had a brief interview with Mr. Bridgeman.

When Mr. Bridgeman was asked if he was acting as the official agent of Mr. Chen in London, he replied: "I cannot say that. You are asking a wide question."

The conversation proceeded:

Are you officially representing the Cantonese Government?—That again is a broad question. Of course, we are constantly in touch and communication with them.

USHERED OUT.

Is the Chinese Information Bureau acting as a news or a propaganda agency?—We are circulating information for the public.

At this point Mr. Bridgeman rose and with the remark, "I am extremely busy and whatever questions you have to ask must be re-asked."

PRESIDENT CONFERS WITH MORGENTHAU

NATIONALISATION ISSUE

Washington, May 10.

The confusion at present surrounding the silver market, where the progress made in the drive to secure improved status for the metal is differently interpreted, is expected to be removed shortly.

Legislation to clarify the silver position is expected soon.

President Roosevelt has apparently informed the Secretary of Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, exactly how far he is willing to go in order to meet the views of the silver bloc in Congress, and it is anticipated that there will be agreed legislation on the lines laid down.

Mr. Morgenthau has already reported to the President the results of his conferences with Congress leaders who are concerned with silver, and he has now notified the Senators who are interested that the Treasury is ready for further discussions at any time.

Some sentiment has developed here for the abandonment of the proposal to nationalise silver, although in some interested circles this is regarded as unimportant.—Reuter.

NEW TERRITORY
DEVELOPMENT

Whilst expressing sympathy with the objects aimed at, the Government's reply to Mr. Braga's questions regarding the development of the agricultural resources of the New Territories is not altogether satisfactory. It is admitted that intensive vegetable and fruit cultivation is steadily spreading, but further extension of the Government experimental garden at Sheungshui is not considered necessary at this stage. Now that it has been definitely established that the New Territories are eminently suitable for the growing of fruit and vegetables, it is surely desirable to expand in this direction, so as to make the Colony far more self-supporting than it is at present. Whilst not in any way under-rating the value of the advice and assistance available at the Sheungshui garden, we suggest that there is call for far greater encouragement than is possible from this source. A broad, comprehensive scheme could be devised and, with the aid of definite financial allocations, put into effect so as to cover large areas of the territories, with depots at various points, at which the services of skilled advisers would be available. It seems essential also that means be found for financially assisting cultivators. Under such conditions, a big, thriving industry could be built up, and in course of time this would help to absorb some of the workless people now striving to eke out an existence in our urban areas. So far as the suggested experimental farm for pig-breeding and poultry-raising is concerned, the Government attitude is somewhat puzzling, for whilst the conclusion has been reached that such a project is not worth while, a willingness to explore the matter further is displayed. The presumption is either that the matter has not yet been analysed in any great detail, or that Government may be disposed to consider a modified scheme. It is something to the good, at any rate, that the Government has not definitely turned the project down. In view of this fact and of the general sympathy expressed with the ends in view, it is now up to those who are keenly interested in the matter to see that the Government is supplied with relevant facts on the subject. By steadily pegging away, the advocates of progressive and intensive development of the New Territories' resources may eventually convince the authorities that they have a really good case.

NOTES OF THE DAY

JAPAN AND CHINA

Japan has not tired of the diplomatic method of letting her foreign policy be made known through channels that may later, if necessary, be repudiated. The challenge to the scheme of financial assistance through the good offices of the League of Nations, in accordance with the recommendations of Geneva's economic and technical experts, is sounded through the semi-official Rengo News Agency. The strangest thing about the whole affair is the suggestion made (fairly near the truth) that China is heading for national bankruptcy within few years, owing to the severity of her adverse trade balance. For Japan does not employ the argument to make other suggestions for remedying this state of affairs or preventing its development, but merely mentions it, en passant, in denying the right of other Powers to come to China's aid, to make her more self-sufficient and less likely to meet with financial disaster. In short, the Rengo statement is practically an invitation to accept the financial ruin in China as conforming to Japan's ideas of what is most desirable in China if Japan's ambitions are to be achieved. Doubtless, this is very true, but it is unlikely to stand by and watch such a course of events. The Rengo statement will, of course, be ignored. When Japan acts, it will be time enough to dispute with her.

Five or ten years ago it looked as if all proposals for British reconstruction would meet with this fate. Now at last we find a different temper in the nation. Do not let us miss the opportunity.

The leaders of industry have more or less solved the problem of guiding large numbers of people to work together, within the framework of a limited company incorporated by law for a definite purpose. But there are many tasks which a limited company cannot undertake, except possibly in those rare cases where it spans an entire industry. The attempt to cover these functions which are beyond the scope of the single company has led to a huge range of experiments—holding companies and amalgamations and cartels, joint selling organisations, trade associations, employers' associations, trade unions, research associations, companies to eliminate redundancy, and many more.

BRITISH SOCIALISM

The executive of the Labour Party at length has repudiated the sensational policy associated with the name of its indiscreet follower, Sir Stafford Cripps. Perhaps it is too late. Sir Stafford has been more often in the public eye during the last 12 months than any other outside the ranks of the Ministry. He was Solicitor-General in the late Labour Government. He is chairman of the Socialist League, a body affiliated with the Labour Party, representing the vigorous, intellectual Left wing. It is he who has brought the question of democracy versus dictatorship to a head in Great Britain by declaring that the Labour Party, if returned to power, would endow itself with emergency powers which would be in effect dictatorial. He has used extravagant language about the House of Lords; about the Palace entourage of the King, and the possible need of resort to force. He has added a spice of excitement to politics by foreshadowing the relentless methods to which the next Labour Government would resort. And now the executive committee of the official party has repudiated his policy.

POWER OF CONTROL

Will that repudiation stand? Have the party's officials any more power to control its decisions than Sir Stafford has? That is the question which is vexing Socialists and being exploited by their opponents. It is urged that the Socialist League is only a small extremist element and has no right to speak for the Labour Party as a whole. But it was significant that at both the last annual delegate meetings of the party this extremist element carried the day in most of the resolutions put to the vote, and its aggressive attitude forced important decisions against the wishes of the leaders. The latter, it is true, generally get their way in the end, for they control parliamentary candidacies. Therefore, it was of great importance that they should, however tardily, issue a declaration reaffirming their belief in democratic government and parliamentary methods, and denouncing "individual or group dictatorships."

SERIOUS THINGS

But the Socialist League led by Sir Stafford Cripps has already done two serious things which cannot quickly be undone. It has led the masses of middle opinion throughout the country, rightly or wrongly, to the view that the Labour Party is a menace to parliamentary government; that it is intent upon seizing arbitrary power and effecting a revolution. Its propaganda has discredited not only the league itself but the whole Labour Party. It has been said, perhaps truly, that every speech made by Sir Stafford Cripps has lost the party 20,000 votes. But more significant than that, he has stirred into activity forces which he had not bargained for—those of the Facists. Before he began his vigorous campaign the British Facists were far more negligible than now. Sir Oswald Mosley's Fascist Organisation has grown in strength with every utterance of members of the Socialist League. The aggressive men of the Left have, in fact, damaged the party to which they belong, and greatly reduced its chances of success at the next election.

REBUILDING THE HOUSE OF INDUSTRY

By ISRAEL M. SIEFF

INDUSTRY needs a new spirit, but new spirit will not get us far unless we can harness it for constructive work. One of the more depressing sides of history is the emergence of ideas which are desperately needed by the community, and the failure of those who hold the ideas to give them practical shape by creating the machinery with which they can be effectively carried out. Suggestions which would have brought success or averted disaster are misunderstood or obstructed, and come to nothing.

Five or ten years ago it looked as if all proposals for British reconstruction would meet with this fate. Now at last we find a different temper in the nation. Do not let us miss the opportunity.

The leaders of industry have more or less solved the problem of guiding large numbers of people to work together, within the framework of a limited company incorporated by law for a definite purpose. But there are many tasks which a limited company cannot undertake, except possibly in those rare cases where it spans an entire industry. The attempt to cover these functions which are beyond the scope of the single company has led to a huge range of experiments—holding companies and amalgamations and cartels, joint selling organisations, trade associations, employers' associations, trade unions, research associations, companies to eliminate redundancy, and many more.

Has not the time come to sum up all this experience and to adopt new mechanisms of organisation which shall bring order into our industrial structure and give it a new pattern?

After a good deal of study I have come to the conclusion that probably three new mechanisms are called for. The first of these mechanisms I will call the Marketing Board. Marketing is far too often regarded as an isolated process in trade, as if it had no connection at all with production. This is an entirely false conception, and has been largely responsible, in a laissez-faire system, for the present breakdown. When we shall have so advanced in the science of industrial organisation as to see in distribution merely an additional process in the long chain of production processes, then we shall be on the way to avoiding a great part of the waste and maladjustments in industry due to an old-fashioned and inadequate selling system.

In order, then, to escape uncertainties and irregularities—the results of unplanned marketing—and to secure an even load on all productive plant, so that costs to the consumer can be reduced, it is necessary to have the market looked at as a whole by an organisation which can find out scientifically what the demand really is, and so handle the stream of orders that they are not broken up uneconomically into little quantities, but are bulked and placed where they can be filled at the lowest cost. A series of strong marketing corporations could secure the reconstruction of industry from the inside.

By taking away from manufacturing units the tasks of maintaining old markets, and finding new markets for their products—a very specialised function—produ-

The Very Idea!

PHOTOGRAPHY

WE have had a great deal to do with photographers in our time. Our photograph has appeared in most papers and periodicals from time to time. We dare say that, next to the Prince of Wales, we are the most photographed man in the world. This is on account of us being a martyr to rheumatism.

You may have seen me. It usually goes: "Mr. Kelly, who was once a martyr to rheumatism, now cured thanks to Henderson's Indian Syrup of Hoofah. This is his un-solicited testimonial. Dear Sirs,—For years I suffered from rheumatism. I could not bend my elbow, and my backbone had knots in it. I spent about eight hours out of the twenty-four in bed.

"After one bottle of your Syrup of Hoofah my backbone straightened out, I cut three new teeth, and won third prize in sweepstakes. After the second bottle I represented Hongkong at the Far Eastern Olympic Games and won the egg and spoon race against all comers. I also find your mixture excellent for cleaning straw hats. You may use this testimonial and enclosed photograph as you wish."

We have been cured of rheumatism about three hundred times altogether.

Our first introduction to a photographer was a very early age.

We were leaned up against a chair and told to watch the dicky bird while the operator retired from sight beneath a black sheet. We thought this a good opportunity to make our escape, but was headed off just as we reached the door. After about five attempts, they roped us to the chair, and the resultant picture, they tell us, was almost lifelike.

Press photography is quite different from the ordinary stuff. We were a Press photographer once, until one day we were listening to the Salvation Army and we came all over funny like. We went into the ring, and, hurling ourselves on to the big drum, sobbed our heart out. We were asked to give our testimony.

We said, "Brother and Sister, we have been down in the depths, but now we are saved. We were Press photographer (Murmurs of horror from the crowd). Yes! We used to barge into all sorts of shows free on the strength of carrying camera. We used to dig our elbows into people, and say to the Governor: 'For the love of Mike, come a bit closer to the camera, can't cher!' And take that hat off and hold it in your right hand."

We used to take pictures of race horses and always made the horse look as if he'd won. (Boo!) But now we are saved."

Then we all sang, "Take Me Back to Ole Virginny," and we were taken into the fold and made an admiral.

About our last photograph we prefer to say nothing. Those sort of pictures seem all right when you first see them, but after a few years you find yourself rambling about in the attic, and you come across it. You then say "Dah!" or laugh bitterly, as the case may be.

Home photography is different still. There is no chance of escape from the amateur photographer. You are dragged out into the back yard with the sun in your eyes for ten minutes, and if the result is not a complete blank it is a vile libel.

The only good thing about photography is the dark room. The office photographers reckon that it is the only place where they can have a decent, undisturbed sleep during working hours.

EGGS AND ART.

Eggs and art are not strangers. Wasn't it Rossetti who displayed an unmistakable appreciation of eggs? Now a recognized artist has sprung upon an unsuspecting world a still-life painting of fried eggs. Nor is it even suggested that it might have been intended for a sunset.

Evidently this artist understands the needs of these times. Artists who seek benefit of the "dole" should paint pictures with some appeal for the common man.

Obviously even a cubist might qualify by adopting the fried-egg medium of expression. Why could he not appeal to the common man and still preserve his precious artistic integrity with, say, a portrait of "Scrambled Eggs."

"Shh-h! It's not my fault. He practically invited himself."

PLETHORA OF CAR LICENCES DIFFERENT FOR DIFFERENT CARS

INTERESTING CASE CROPS UP

A legal point over the meaning of the word "appropriate" in a traffic summons arose before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning.

The defendants were Yau Wai, summoned for having driven private car No. 1981 without an appropriate licence, and Lai Ming-chai, the owner of the car, summoned for having allowed Yau Wai to drive the car.

Mr. F. H. Loseby, appearing for defendants, submitted for Yau Wai that if a person had a driver's licence he could drive any car except a public or commercial car, because the regulations did not provide otherwise, and if a person had a public driver's licence he could drive a private car. "Was it contended," asked Loseby, "that the word 'appropriate' meant that a person should have a licence for every type of car he drove?"

TWO TYPES.

Mr. Hamilton:—There are two types of licences, public and private, and therefore if you have a public licence and are driving a private car, it would be wrong. For every separate type of vehicle, a separate type of licence is provided.

Traffic Inspector Nicoll said that if a person had a licence to drive a public car he could drive a private car, but if he had a licence endorsed to drive a bus in Kowloon, as in this case, then he could not drive a private car in the Central District.

NOT IN REGULATIONS.

Mr. Loseby:—That is exactly my point. There are two kinds of licences. A public licence permits a person to drive a private car, but anybody who has a driver's licence may drive a private car." What had probably happened was that the I.G.P.U. had said that this licence should not be used for a private car, but that was departmental, and was not in the regulations.

Mr. Hamilton:—The only way I can construe that word "appropriate" is that there is a special licence for every type of car. I am surprised to learn that a man with a public driver's licence is allowed to drive a private car.

Mr. Loseby pointed out that a section could not be interpreted by reading that particular section only; the whole Ordinance should be read so as to interpret the section.

The case was adjourned until May 29.

This picture was taken by the canon of the diocese of Antl and permission given to publish it and announce the miracle. A diocesan tribunal, after long watching, decided that no trickery was involved. At the right is the sanctuary of the Oblate Fathers in Antl.

very specially to Trade School instruction. The standard of work done in Hongkong is on the whole bad, and is characterised by a degree of carelessness impossible in a Trade School trained apprentice. There would seem to be every hope of such a school being a pronounced success, but certain points must be observed:

(a) The standard of the Trade School student must be sufficiently above that of the outside apprentice to attract the attention of the best firms.

(b) It is not worth while giving a Trade School training to a boy without insisting on a knowledge of English, either on entry or to be attained during training.

(c) The rates of pay in the Straits, relative to the cost of living, are at least 50% higher than in Hongkong. Care must be taken not to attract to a Trade School boys of a class which would regard $30-$40 a month as insufficient.

(d) As in the Junior Technical School it would be best to attract the sons of foremen, etc., in the garages: These could either pass through a preliminary course at the Junior Technical School or be recruited direct from the English schools. About 30 per cent of the students without any trade connection could be recruited direct from English schools. The placing of such students should not be difficult if the bigger motor agencies can be interested, as it certainly would pay them to be.

LINK WITH P.W.D.

(e) A connection should be established from the beginning with all branches of the Public Works Department which run workshops. The width of the course in the Trade School would enable it to undertake a fair amount of Public Works Department work and a certain number of its students would make valuable additions to the workshop staffs.

(f) The development of Hongkong as an airport should give openings which will otherwise be filled by imported labour.

It is suggested that much confusion of thought can be avoided if it is recognised that the aims of a Trade School in Hongkong would be:

(a) To effect an improvement in the skill of the artisan employed on light engineering work.

(b) To bring modern methods before the eyes of the garage proprietors.

(c) To provide a reliable, educated type of foreman.

It should be understood that the boy trained in a Trade School would not, on leaving, find the automobile trade his only source of employment. He would be well equipped for any branch of the light engineering trades.

BUILDING TRADE.

In regard to the building industry, Mr. White states: It is hoped to be able to lay proposed system of part time apprenticeship before the Government and the master builders at an early date.

A start has however been made by providing an evening course in practical carpentry, drawing and workshop arithmetic, confined to boys connected with the trade. This course should provide useful data for future action. The course has been strongly supported by the Master Builders Association.

FURTHER ACTION.

Concluding, Mr. White intimates that before further action can be

ENGLAND'S MISERABLE FOOTBALL AT BUDAPEST

LOSE TO HUNGARY BY 2-1

Only Defence Manages To Live Up To Reputation: Attack Fails

BLOW TO INTERNATIONAL PRESTIGE

Budapest, May 10.

With the majority of a fully representative team playing well below form, England to-day were soundly beaten by Hungary in an international football match at Budapest, losing by two goals to one after a blank first half.

Excessive heat (the thermometer registered 86 in the shade) and a grassless pitch had a telling effect on the Englishmen, who spent most of their time endeavouring to master the intricacies of ball control under such foreign conditions.

Reuter says that as a result of the defeat English soccer prestige received a severe set-back, a crowd of 40,000, including the Regent of Hungary, watching the home team proceed to record a great triumph.

The teams were presented to H.S.H. Admiral-Nicholas Horthy before the start of the games, when the national anthems of both countries were played.

Cooper, the famous Derby County and International back won the toss for England, but it yielded the visitors no profit.

NO ENGLISH ATTACK.

The English attack was all astray, and could do nothing right. The Hungarians had full measure of the exchanges in the first half, and Cooper, Hangood and Moss were constantly being called upon to relieve pressure.

These three players, in fact, were the only Englishmen to live up to reputation.

The Hungarians fully deserved their success, the foundation of which was laid 20 minutes after half time, when Avar, at inside right, opened the scoring. Five minutes later Sarsos added a second, and it was not until a quarter of an hour later, and with only six minutes to go that Tilson, the Manchester City player, netted England's only goal following a melee.

The Hungarians played a type of football which appeared to disconcert the Englishmen. The winners were especially prominent with their headwork, whereas their opponents were distinctly disappointing, with a negligible display.

NEW BILLIARDS BLUE RIBANDS

Davis And a Tour In Australia

London, April 17. Yesterday was memorable in the history of billiards, for play commenced in the United Kingdom Championship, a new event, one stipulation being that the Cup must not be taken abroad—this proviso was dictated by the action of Walter Lindrum, who took the 1933 Cup to Australia and said he would defend the Cup and his title only in his own country.

The two contestants for the United Kingdom Championship are Joe Davis and Tom Newman, England's best two players. Davis has beaten Newman three times this season and I think he will win this match, although there is very little between the two players.

I had not seen Davis for some weeks and the first question I asked him was whether he was going to Australia to challenge Walter Lindrum for the world's championship.

"I AM NOT ENTHUSIASTIC."

He replied: "At the moment I am not exactly enthusiastic."

"Why?" I asked.

"Well, for this reason—I cannot get what I call a reasonable guarantee. It is all very well for Lindrum to say that he and I would play before record attendances, but I want something a little more precise and definite than that. Do you blame me?"

I could only say "No," and then Davis went on: "I cannot understand why the Australian governing body does not take a hand and run the whole affair. To leave everything to the two players chiefly concerned seems all wrong. For many reasons I would like to go to Australia, but before I make a decision to go I want to know a little more than I know at present."

A personal opinion is that Australia will not see Joe Davis this year.

New York, May 10. The St. Louis Cardinals whose aspirations towards the National League pennant and World Series must now be seriously considered, recorded their eleventh win out of twelve matches to-day, when they nosed out the Giants in a brilliant display of baseball.

The Yankees had a field day against Chicago White Sox and recorded 13 runs. The Chicago Cubs were in just as jubilant a state against the Brooklyn Dodgers, while the Cleveland Indians had a remarkable encounter with Boston Red Sox, finally winning by 11 runs to 10.

London, May 10. Clarrie Grimmett, the man who is expected to cause more trouble than anyone else to English Test batsmen this summer, was in magnificent form for the Australians against Cambridge to-day.

He was very unlucky to miss the coveted feat of taking all ten wickets in an innings, but he finished with the following figures:

O. M.	R.	Wkts.
28	8	74 9

The upshot of this was that Cambridge were immediately put in the shadow of defeat, being dismissed for 158, and the shadow deepened when on returning to the crease, they lost six wickets for paltry 68 runs.

The Australians, having laid the foundation of a winning score on the first day, easily consolidated the position.

STYLISH BROWN.

Brown went on to complete his century (his first in England and of the tour) and Ponsonby, the imperturbable, proceeded to pass the 200 mark.

At 481 for 5, Brown having been dismissed for 105, the innings was declared closed. Ponsonby carrying his bat for 229.

Except for a difficult chance at 66, Ponsonby played a blameless innings. He made his runs all round the wicket, his best strokes yielding him 19 fours.

Brown greatly impressed with a stylish display of batting, and promises to become part of the backbone of the Australian batting.

EARLY FOR LANCS.

Lancashire needed only two days to finish their match against the Somersets.

Batting first they compiled 339 for 6 and applied the closure, Watson being leading scorer with 142.

Somerset collapsed in unexpected fashion, being sent back for 66 in their first attempt. Following on they aggregated 114, Booth taking 5 for 49, and were thus defeated by an innings and 169 runs.

ALL ABOUT LOCAL RACING

Why The Macao Meeting Was Postponed: Several Ponies Go To Stud NEW BETTING SYSTEM EXPLAINED

(By "Captain Foster")

I have very little to say this week in connection with the activities at Happy Valley beyond mentioning that the entries for the Fifth Extra Race Meeting, which will be held on the 19th and 21st instant, closed yesterday.

I shall deal with the programme next week, but it may interest readers to hear that the Classification Committee had a conference on Tuesday last, and the result of their deliberations have already been published in these columns.

I feel The Tiger has been somewhat unlucky as I had expected to see him demoted to "C" class. I hope his Owners will not think I am disparaging the pony but, as he has only secured a second place in nine starts, I thought he was due for a lower class.

I gather the Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club are considering a change in the Daily Double betting. Instead of dividing the Pool among the ticket holders of the winner of the first leg, if the winner of the second leg is unbacked, it is proposed that the money be carried forward to the credit of the Daily Double Pool of the subsequent Meeting. I think this proposal will be favourably received on the whole.

NEW BETTING SYSTEM.

Athletes have been subsidised in the past. Supporters of athletes who have been omitted from the Emplaid dozen consider it should be discontinued.

Mr. Jack Mannix, secretary of the Sydney Athletic Club considers that only good would accrue if the change were made.

"It could be left to the selection committee to say whether the athlete nominated be up to Empire requirements," he said. "This would eliminate anyone not worthy of selection slipping in."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract Problem.

The terms used in the game of bridge have been carried down for well over one hundred years. They came from the game of whist.

All trick plays in the old days were termed "coups." There were the Bath coup, the grand coup, the Vienna coup, and others. However, I sometimes wonder if bridge players haven't misused the word.

The distinction between a simple coup and a grand coup is that, to complete a grand coup, you must trump a good card. You can make the same kind of play, but if the card you trump is not an established card, the play is only a simple coup.

It is true that it is harder to trump a good card than a worthless one. To-day's hand is an example of a grand coup.

The Play

East's opening lead was the eight of diamonds. The jack was

♦ A Q J 10 2	♦ 3
♦ 6 5 4 2	♦ Q 9 7
♦ K 10 3	♦ A Q 7 6 5
♦ 8 6 2	♦ 8 7

finessed from dummy and West's king held the trick.

West returned a small diamond, hoping that his partner could ruff, and dummy's nine won the trick. Declarer returned the six of spades from dummy and finessed the ten, which held.

A small club was led and dummy's jack finessed. When it held, the four of spades was played from dummy, declarer finessing the jack, and East's nine spot dropped, warning the declarer that the two remaining trump were in the West hand.

Declarer now led a small heart. East went in with the ace and, of course, was helpless. If he returned a club, it would be into declarer's queen; so he elected to return a small heart.

The ten was played from dummy. This was a winning card, but the declarer realized that he must shorten his hand in trump, so he literally discarded a trump on the dummy's good ten of hearts.
